YAMAMOTO, HEAD OF JAPANESE SEA FORCES, KILLED

Admiral Was Bitter Enemy Of U. S.; Planned Pearl Harbor Attack

TOKYO DECLARES HE MET DEATH IN SOUTH PACIFIC

(By Associated Press)

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, the Japanese navy's commander-in-chief, author of the Pearl Harbor attack and the man who once boasted he would dictate peace terms in the White House, was killed last month in air combat on some far southern front, Tokyo announced yesterday.

Emperor Hironito ordered a state funeral and raised him posthumously to the rank of admiral of the fleet. The imperial diet (parliament) was called into session for today to pay its respects. Tokyo broadcasts told of nationwide mourning.

Despite the defeats suffered by his command in the Coral sea, off Midway and in the Solomons, Yamamoto was this war's greatest hero to the Japanese people, to whom the defeats were reported as victories.

He probably was the number one enemy of the United States, both in the bitterness of his hate and the damage he inflicted on American armed forces. He was rated Japan's ablest sea fighter. If he died in action, as Tokyo says, he was the highest ranking officer of any of the belligerents to meet such a death in this war. He was 59.

A voice choked with emotion read this imperial headquarters communique to the nation:

"Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander-in-chief of the combined fleet, gallantly met death aboard a warplane which engaged in an encounter with the enemy while directing general strategic operations during April this year.

"Admiral Mineichi Koga, who has been appointed Yamamoto's successor, is now commanding the combined fleet."

A subsequent broadcast said Yamamoto died "on the very front lines of the south," indicating a locale somewhere over the long arc of islands north of Australia, from Timor to the Solomons. There were heavy air combats over the Solomons early in April, others over New Guinea in the middle of the month.

Koga, the new commander-in-chief, is 58, was chief of naval forces in China waters in 1941-42, took a leading role in the seizure of Hongkong and the Philippines and recently had commanded Yokosuka, Japan's largest home naval base.

Tokyo radio's various announcements on the death were recorded by the Associated Press and federal communications commission.

Some American naval men in Washington expressed skepticism concerning the Tokyo version of Yamamoto's end. They said his forces had met so many reverses in recent months that he might have committed harikiri, it

REDS LAY DOWN BIG ARTILLERY BARRAGES

LONDON, Saturday, May 22.—(AP)—Heavy Russian artillery barrages along hundreds of miles of the eastern front were announced early today in a Moscow communique which ignored German reports that the Red army already had lashed out in a prelude to offensives in the Caucasus and Orel sectors.

The midnight bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor said merely that Russian troops "consolidated their lines and exchanged artillery fire with the enemy" northeast of Novorossisk in the Caucasus.

Berlin broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press said the Red army had "concentrated strong offensive forces on the whole Kuban front in order to capture the German-Rumanian bridgehead."

Another Berlin broadcast heard by Reuters last night said the Russians already had launched attacks in the Lisichansk and Slavyansk areas of the Donets basin, presumably as forerunners to heavier pushes in the Orel region to the north.

A Tass dispatch from Moscow gave an idea of the scale of the air fighting in the Caucasus, saying that 500 German planes were destroyed there in the first 13 days of May.

This heavy air fighting was reported continuing along with a constant artillery duel after a series of strong German counter-attacks had been beaten off.

A Tass correspondent described the Kuban river area above Novorossisk as "swamps grown with reeds, lagoons, sandbars and sandbanks; small hamlets connected with each other by unsteady paths." He said the Germans were fighting desperately for every islet and lagoon, and Russian troops wore special waterproof uniforms and lifebelts in their arduous operations.

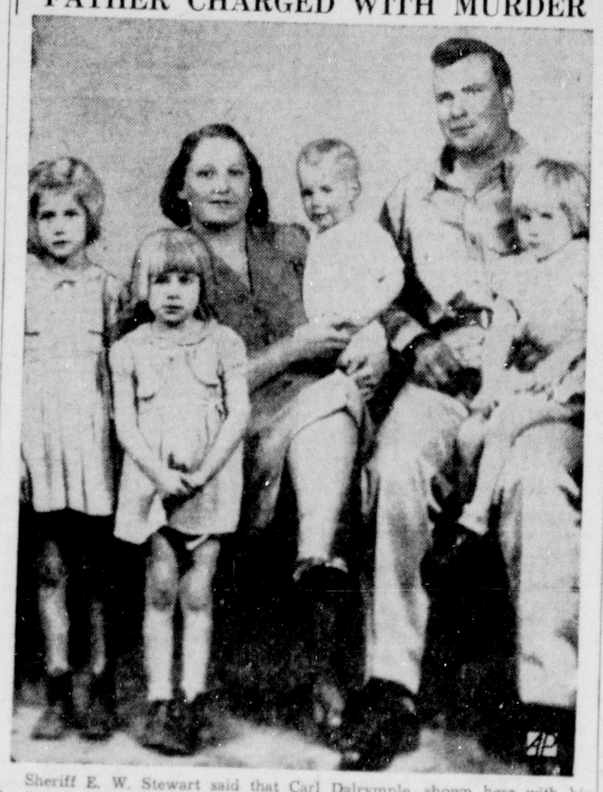
LIGHTNINGS DOWN SIX JAPS OVER NEW GUINEA

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Saturday, May 22.—(AP)—Allied Lightning P-38 fighters destroyed six Zeros in dog fights over Salamaua, New Guinea, and probably damaged two others, the high command announced today.

The Japanese sent raiders against Wau, 35 miles southwest of Salamaua, and Liberators shot down two and damaged two others.

Allied planes for the fourth time within a week raided Rabaul, New Britain, and two Flying Fortresses failed to return.

FATHER CHARGED WITH MURDER



Sheriff E. W. Stewart said that Carl Dalrymple, shown here with his family, admitted fatally shooting his wife and five children. The 27-year-old Gadsden, Ala., mechanic is charged with slaying his 27-year-old wife and their children—including an unnamed month-old baby girl not shown in this picture—at Fort Payne, Ala. Left to right: Gaynell, 8; Jean, 7; Mrs. Dalrymple; Jimmy, 3; Dalrymple, and Mary Lou, 5. Dalrymple later shot himself and was in critical condition in a Fort Payne hospital.

HOPE FADES FOR COMMITTEE COMPROMISE ON TAX MEASURE

MAY CHALLENGE WLB'S LEGALITY

Lewis Seen As Ready To Take Legal Action To Force Parley Resumption

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—The war labor board's panel in the soft coal dispute submitted a report Friday night which indicated that any straight basic wage increase under the Little Steel formula was improbable, but left the way open for adjustments of other kinds, which could be minor or substantial as the full board determines.

The principal demand upon which a compromise decision appeared possible is the portal-to-portal method of compensation which would include payment for underground travel time. At present the miners seven-hour working day includes only the actual productive time.

Other concessions were possible in the way of increased assurance that the miners would receive the benefit of a six-day week, increased vacation payments, and free equipment and tools.

The report was factual and contained no recommendations, as such.

However, the panel cited figures showing that average straight time wage increases for various classifications of mine workers varied from 15 to 25 per cent since January 1, 1941. The Little Steel formula permits not more than 15 per cent as a cost-of-living adjustment.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers were reported Friday night to be considering legal action to force a renewal of collective bargaining in the soft coal dispute.

Informed persons, who would not be quoted by name, said no decision has been made, but that Lewis' aides began studying such strategy the day after the war labor board directed the coal operators not to resume bargaining with the miners until both sides agreed to proceed under board auspices.

Some U. M. W. representatives believe a violation of the national labor relations act can be shown. One of them consulted counsel familiar with the act and received this memorandum:

"The president had no authority to and did not suspend the national labor

'TIME TABLE' FOR WAR RATION BOOK 3 GIVEN

BATON ROUGE, La., May 21.—(AP)—The office of price administration Friday released a "time table" for distribution by mail of war ration book three which will replace the others as they expire.

Letter carriers in Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma will distribute 3,262,100 application cards, each good for a single individual or an entire family, in the period from May 20 to June 5.

Consumers will fill out the cards and mail them to Dallas, Tex., the regional OPA office, between the dates of June 1 to 10.

The new ration books will be mailed to the applicants from about June 20 to July 21.

VESSEL TORPEDOED

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—The navy reported Friday that a medium-sized United States merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine in the south Atlantic off the west coast of Africa in mid-February. Survivors have arrived at Miami, Fla.

Will Seek President's Views Before Conferees Stage Showdown Today

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—A new pall of pessimism settled Friday night over a joint senate-house effort to devise a pay-as-you-go income tax compromise.

Some members of the conference committee abandoned all hope for a compromise between the "skip-a-year" bill approved by the senate, and the house measure that would cancel the 6 per cent normal and 13 per cent first bracket surtax on all 1942 incomes.

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, chairman of the senate finance committee, said "We have failed to make progress, but we haven't abandoned hope. Tomorrow will be decisive. If we are unable to agree we ought to be able to determine that tomorrow."

In event of such failure, Representative Knutson, Republican, Minnesota, leader of the house Republican conference members, said "we will return to the house and ask for further instructions." This would open the way for another Republican motion for the house to recede from its own bill and accept the senate's modified Ruml bill.

Thus there would be another vote on the Ruml-flavored bill, which the house in the last four months has rejected three times by votes of 215 to 198, 206 to 202, and 202 to 194. The senate approved the skip-a-year bill, 49 to 30.

"At one time or another," Knutson said, "221 members of the house (a majority) have voted for the Carlson bill. (Representative Carlson, Kansas Republican, is author of the modified Ruml measure). The Republican conferees from the house have no alternative but to insist on the Carlson bill."

The house-senate conferees, behind closed doors, were presented Friday with a compromise, first proposed by Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the house ways and means committee, that would tax 1942 individual income at the softer 1941 rates and exemptions, to cushion the transition to a pay-as-you-go system in which taxpayers would remit in one year on the basis of income received the same year.

Committee sources said the seven house conferees voted 4 to 3 for this proposition, but that it was rejected unanimously by the senate's conference members. The four Democratic members of the house group were reported to have supported it.

Meanwhile, it was understood that some Democratic conference members would contact President Roosevelt before Saturday's showdown session to determine what sort of pay-as-you-go legislation would meet with the president's approval. Mr. Roosevelt earlier in the week virtually told congress he would veto the modified Ruml bill.

Doughton said, however, "We are not approaching the problem from what the president would do or would not do, we want to write a bill acceptable to congress."

Asked what the treasury's latest views were, the 79-year-old legislator said: "Silence is their latest viewpoint."

CHINESE BOMBERS RAID ENEMY BASE OF ICHANG

CHUNGKING, May 21.—(AP)—Chinese bombers raided the Yangtze river port of Ichang, one of the principal bases of the Japanese in their drive against China's rice bowl west of Tungting lake, the Chinese high command announced Friday.

The communique said the bombers dumped "huge quantities" of explosives on Japanese military headquarters, supply depots and important installations in the suburbs of Ichang, starting large fires. All the Chinese planes returned safely.

The Japanese striking southward from points below Ichang, were said to have made a fresh attack in their battle for the rice-producing area.

TWO-DAY TOLL OF AXIS PLANES IS BOOSTED TO 186

American Pilots Destroy 113 Aircraft In Single Day Of Fighting

WIDESPREAD RAIDS MADE ON ITALY AND SARDINIA

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 21.—(AP)—American fighters and bombers destroyed 113 or more Axis aircraft Thursday at the cost of a single American plane in raids spread over Italy to a point north of Rome, and widely over Sardinia.

In what was officially described as "one of the greatest victory days in the history of the strategic air force," the powerfully armed United States bombers and fast protective fighters ran the two-day Allied toll of Axis planes in this war theater to 186.

The previous day 73 German and Italian craft were destroyed against an Allied loss of four planes.

A half-dozen types of bombers and fighters participated in Thursday's slaughter, in which 91 enemy planes were wrecked and burned on the ground and 22 shot down in areial combat.

An Allied communique said seven of the bag were six-engined troop and freight-carrying Merseburg-323s such as were destroyed in droves off Tunisia in the latter stages of the North African campaign.

The day's greatest destruction was done by the Flying Fortresses, of Major General James H. Doolittle's strategic force, in an attack on Grosseto airdrome, 90 miles north of Rome.

FLOOD WIDENS AS LEVEES CRUMBLE

Dozen Breaks Spread Waters Over Many Farm Acres In Midwest

(By Associated Press)

A dozen breaks in levees along the Mississippi, Illinois and Wabash rivers spewed flood waters over thousands of acres of fertile midwestern farm land yesterday but saved several cities from the threat of immediate inundation.

With more than 100,000 persons homeless and losses running into many millions and mounting hourly, refugees left danger zones by car and boat, while soldiers and civilians bulwarked dikes against the onrush of cresting currents.

The Illinois river was on the rise along a 200 mile stretch from Peru to Grafton, Ill.; the Mississippi was inching up along a similar length from Grafton to Cape Girardeau, Mo.; the Missouri was expanding on the home stretch of its sweep to the Mississippi.

More than 400 families and 2,000 head of livestock were evacuated—some by boat and barge—from the Illinois side of the Mississippi between St. Louis, Mo., and Cairo, Ill. In that sector, 3,400 troops labored to protect settlements and rail lines. Levees were breached at Stringtown, Fort Chartres, Degonia, Fountain Bluff and Grand Tower.

Two thousand soldiers from Fort Sheridan, Ill., were assigned to service in the Illinois river valley below Beardstown today. That will raise the total of regular army personnel on flood duty in the state to 5,400. In addition, Governor Dwight H. Green ordered 500 Illinois state militiamen mobilized in their home armories to stand by for a call if conditions become more grave.

The Red Cross estimated 24,337 families—about 96,000 persons—were homeless in Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Kansas. With 12,000 Indianans also routed, the six-state total approximates 108,000 persons.

The organization reported 14,662 persons were being sheltered, 13,661 were being fed, 1,056,961 acres were submerged, and 8,665 homes were damaged or ruined.

In Illinois alone, it added, 10,000 families were homeless, 4,500 persons were being sheltered and 6,000 were being fed.

The Illinois river, meanwhile, rose higher and higher, with forecasts of expected crests indicating the worst was yet to come.

New Jap Navy Head Inherits Legacy Of Impending Disaster

Interpretation By

GLENN BABB

(Wide World War Analyst)

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto was one of those unfortunate public figures who outlive their successes. For the Japanese navy's commander-in-chief the bloom of victory had given way to the sere and seedy stage before death somewhat mysteriously claimed him.

His adversaries survived to repair the ravages of the Pearl Harbor treachery and the lucky punch that sent the Prince of Wales and Repulse down off Malta. They had gone on to build up aggregations of naval and air power far beyond Japan's ability to match. Yamamoto left to his successor, the tenacious but unimaginative Admiral Mineichi Koga, a legacy of impending disaster.

In the circumstances it is not surprising that there should be suggestions that Yamamoto, who hated the United States so bitterly he would hardly have cared to survive Japan's defeat at our hands, may have committed harakiri. But such speculation has become almost automatic when a Japanese leader dies and should be treated with caution. It is more likely that he died in some unromantic fashion and the high command trumped up the story of his death in air combat to keep alive his legend.

Had he died some 13 months ago, before the Coral sea, Midway, the Solomons, the Bismarck sea and the Aleutian conflict, his reputation as one of history's most successful sea commanders might have survived, at least among his compatriots—assuming that they will have room in their hearts for warrior heroes after this conflict is over.

Perhaps Yamamoto had outlived his usefulness as well as his victories. He had imagination, audacity, readiness to take the long chance and try new methods, an utter lack of scruple that made him ideal for plotting the first blows against the unready Anglo-Saxon powers and carrying them through.

He more than any other individual, was responsible for the Pearl Harbor attack and the combination of air and sea power that enabled the emperor's forces to overrun all southeastern Asia and the islands down to Australia.

But times have changed and as far as Japan is concerned they call for dogged steadfastness rather than brilliance and audacity. Koga may serve the purpose better. However, the passing of Yamamoto deprives the Japanese high command of its ablest sea-

VITAL DECISIONS IN WAR PARLEYS NEAR

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—The stage of fateful decisions has been reached in the war strategy conferences President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are holding with their military advisers.

Responding to a request for a progress report, Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference Friday that he and the prime minister expected to receive preliminary recommendations Friday night from the British-American chiefs of staff.

They will study them over the week end, he said, and next week will bring the process of ironing out the kinks and reaching final decisions.

Mr. Roosevelt said the combined chiefs of staff, made up of top military, naval and air advisers, had been getting along extremely well in their planning. So far, he added, they have done most of the work.

The chief executive gave no hint as to what are the principal matters of concern in the current reappraisal of the global war situation.

The presence here for the conference of Britain's military and naval chiefs in the India-Burma theater has given rise to speculation that new blows against Japan are being mapped. This has been stimulated, too, by frequent visits by Dr. T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, to the White House since Churchill's arrival.

When reporters mentioned Soong's visits, the president said China had figured in the talks with the prime minister but that so had a lot of other places.

NAZI SUB YARDS HEAVILY RAIDED BY FORTRESSES

Emden And Wilhelmshaven Hit; Twelve Of Big Bombers Fail To Return

BELIEVE ALLIES BREWING HUGE AERIAL OFFENSIVE

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—American Flying Fortresses smashed their way unescorted through heavy concentrations of enemy fighters and anti-aircraft fire Friday to attack the submarine yards at Emden and Wilhelmshaven, Germany's North sea naval bases, in separate daylight raids.

"Despite very strong enemy fighter opposition and intense flak," an Eighth U. S. air force communique said, the twin assaults "were pressed home and a large weight of bombs" was dropped.

Twelve of the big four-engined bombers failed to come back from the dual operation to smash the vital German U-boat construction yards at the two port cities. Emden is about 330 airline miles from London and Wilhelmshaven is about 40 miles farther.

Many of the enemy fighters which challenged the well-armed American heavyweights were destroyed in the numerous combats which ensued, the communique said.

Fliers returning from the Wilhelmshaven raid said they fought a terrific battle with 100 to 150 enemy planes.

At one bomber base the Fortress crews declared the Wilhelmshaven attack was "the toughest yet—next to Bremen," which was raided April 17 at a cost of 16 bombers.

The sky over Wilhelmshaven seemed full of Focke-Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109's which flew recklessly through the tight formations of Flying Fortresses, the airmen reported.

While the Fortresses were pounding northwestern Germany for the second time in three days, Thunderbolts again patrolled the coast of Nazi-occupied Holland in Europe. The fighters also bumped into enemy planes which brought down three P-47's, the communique said. It added that "some Focke-Wulfs were hit, although their destruction was not confirmed."

The Emden and Wilhelmshaven attacks were carried out at midday by what Eighth U. S. air force headquarters described as "two strong formations" of heavy bombers.

The Fortress pilots said German fighters met them "very high over the targets and there were very close and fierce attacks."

It was the fourth assault on Wilhelmshaven, one of Germany's greatest shipbuilding centers, by the Fortresses since they started their campaign on destruction against that naval base last January 27.

Friday's raid on Emden, the second in a week, was made by an Eighth air force Fortress wing commanded by Brigadier General Frederick Anderson which made its debut in the bombing of Kiel Wednesday. Wilhelmshaven was attacked by a veteran wing under Brigadier General H. S. Hansell.

The double assault kept up the staggering impact of the Allies' around-the-clock bombing of the continent from all sides, believed by many to be a preview of an all-out aerial offensive to knock the European Axis partners out of the war.

The aerial knockout experiment is expected by unofficial observers to begin within a few days when British-based big bombers rejoin the general

FLOOD DANGER IN LOWER RIVER VALLEY IS SLIGHT

NEW ORLEANS, May 21.—(AP)—River forecasters said Friday water now in sight from upper tributaries of the Mississippi river would cause continued rise in the lower valley until early June but that no concern was indicated at this time.

Official forecasters P. J. Naughton here and H. L. Pugh, at Vicksburg, in the two river districts below Arkansas City, predicted near flood stages would be reached in the lower valley by early in June.

Friday's forecast showed the river from 4 to 10 feet below flood stage from Memphis to New Orleans but above flood stage in the upper valley.

KNOX SAYS U. S. CAMPAIGN A SUCCESS; MOPPING UP OF REST OF ENEMY IN PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—With victory in the bag, United States troops fought Friday to mop up the remnants of Japanese forces which for almost a year had occupied the American island of Attu at the western tip of the Aleutians chain.

The first stage of the campaign to throw the enemy entirely out of the western Aleutians was officially described as successful.

On the basis of scanty information here it appeared that the Japanese remaining on Attu were a relatively small force of the 2,000 to 3,500 men stationed there when the American expeditionary force began its conquest of the island eleven days ago.

The remnants, according to the last war bulletin, were entrapped on the rocky headland immediately east of Chichagof harbor and it was considered only a question of time until they would be forced to surrender or die in their foxholes and machine-gun nests.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, at a press conference late Friday afternoon, declared emphatically that the campaign was a "successful operation" adding there could be "no question about that."

"It is a mopping up operation now," Knox said. "The situation is a good deal like the Tunisian operation when the enemy was on Cap Bon."

"The enemy is now encircled, surrounded, on that little peninsula," the secretary explained. "It is only a question of time until they will either be liquidated or surrender."

Knox scoffed at Axis reports that

MAJOR DRIVE IN PACIFIC IS SEEN

Correspondent Thinks Attack An Rabaul Is Likely Allied Strategy

By Charles McMurtry

PEARL HARBOR, May 21.—(AP)—The United States appears to be preparing for a mighty blow against the Japanese in the Pacific.

Attu, Amchitka, and Adak in the Aleutians, Russell island and repeated aerial blows in the Solomons and the bombing of Nauru, Tarawa and other islands in the central Pacific, were warmup attacks.

To keep the Japanese annoyed in widely separated places—then to strike when it will hurt most appears to be the current strategy.

When and where the big offensive will be made is subject to much conjecture but a good guess might be: Rabaul this summer.

The Rabaul fortress on New Britain island is Japan's strongest outpost south of the Truk island base and better defended than Guadalcanal, which held out for seven months.

The Japanese have had much longer to fortify Rabaul than they had to build up their Guadalcanal defenses. It is closer to the Truk base and not so hard to supply. Its defense will have the leadership of generals who fought at Guadalcanal and fled that bloody island in submarines just before it fell to the Americans. Those generals and other high Japanese officers, although defeated, learned much about American fighting, as any marine or doughboy who helped to drive them out will testify.

Major General Millard F. Harmon, commander of United States army ground forces in the south Pacific, estimated the Japanese evacuated at least 2,000 troops from Guadalcanal early in February. That is not a great force, but those 2,000—mostly officers—have had all the months since to teach their Rabaul defenders the lessons learned in the Solomons.

The Rabaul-next strategy would re-

RATION BOOK STAMPS TO OBTAIN CANNING SUGAR

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—Housewives will be able to get sugar for home canning by using stamps 15 and 16 in ration book one, the office of price administration announced Friday.

The revised program wipes out a plan of applying to local ration boards for coupons, as previously announced.

Each stamp becomes valid next Monday and is good for five pounds each for canning sugar until October 31.

Families who require more than ten pounds of sugar a person for home canning will apply to the rationing boards, the OPA explained. The ten-pounds-a-person allowance secured using stamps 15 and 16 will provide each person with 40 quarts of canned fruit, the OPA estimated.

WARNING OF AIR RAID IS SOUNDED IN LONDON

LONDON, Saturday, May 22.—(AP)—An air raid warning was sounded in London early today.

Earlier a few raiders appeared over the southeast coast, dropping a bomb near one village and causing an explosion and some damage, but apparently there were no casualties.

Shortly after the alert was sounded, anti-aircraft guns opened fire in one outlying metropolitan area.

LEND-LEASE BILL OKEHED BY HOUSE

Swiftly Approves Six Billion Dollar Appropriation For Program

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—A $6,273,629,000 lend-lease appropriation was passed swiftly by the house Friday after it was informed that the mutual assistance program, working in reverse, is bringing thousands of tons of food and other supplies to American troops stationed abroad.

The bill was sent to the senate by rollcall vote of 309 to 4 after both Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, and Representative Taber, Republican, New York, ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, told how, in many cases, this nation's war partners are feeding and housing our troops, thus saving shipping space of untold value.

An amendment to forbid use of any of the funds for payment of subsidies on agriculture products was adopted by a vote of 214 to 96.

Offered by Taber, it brought little debate but the house stand was regarded as significant, particularly in the light of a recent request by War Food Administrator Chester Davis for an additional $1,000,000,000 borrowing authority for the commodity credit corporation. The CCC is now subsidizing production of some foods.

Action on the bill came the same day the appropriations committee reported it.

Heeding the words of Lend-Lease Administrator Edward Stettinius that "our boys are freely giving their lives in the battle for freedom" and "I know that we behind the lines are prepared to supply all our material resources," the house waded into the bill which will raise the total approved for the swapping program since it was inaugurated to about $24,000,000,000.

The house only Thursday voted a

DR. MENGIS NAMED HEALTH HEAD HERE

Dr. C. L. Mengis, former coroner of Ouachita parish, will succeed Dr. G. Douglas Williams, resigned, as head of the Ouachita Parish Health department.

Official announcement of Dr. Mengis' appointment was made yesterday afternoon by Dr. David E. Brown, state health officer, in a telegram to Mayor Harvey H. Benoit of Monroe.

The appointment of Dr. Mengis becomes effective June 1, according to Dr. Brown. Dr. Williams, head of the local unit for about eight years, resigned his post the past few days to begin private practice at Lake Charles, it was reported.

Dr. Mengis was coroner of Ouachita parish during the early 1930s and had his residence at Sterlington. After his tenure of office as coroner he went to Winnsboro where he became head of the parish health unit there. More recently he has been serving as assistant state health officer under Dr. Brown.

Dr. Mengis, who was a major in World War I, was born July 11, 1877, at Vicksburg, Miss. He received his B. S. degree at Mississippi A. and M. college and later studied medicine at Tulane university from which he graduated in 1900.

He spent several years in South America engaged in the eradication of infectious diseases, and during World War I he was in active service from August 25, 1917, until February 1, 1919. He was commissioned a first lieutenant in the medical corps upon his entry in service and advanced to the rank of major on July 10, 1918.

During his past residence here Dr. Mengis was prominently engaged in Masonic, American Legion and Red Cross work. He was also a former police juror from Ward 1.

EXPECT MINERS TO BE BACK AT WORK MONDAY

PITTSBURGH, May 21.—(AP)—The back-to-work movement of Pennsylvania soft coal miners gained momentum Friday, but was somewhat offset by new walkouts which left a total of 5,300 on strike and 11 mines closed in three states.

Three thousand men returned to the pits Friday morning and 1,500 voted to go back Monday. They were in United Mine Workers District 2, whose president, James Mark, predicted all the central Pennsylvania mines would be operating by Monday. About 2,400 men remained out in five mines in his bailiwick.

'Super Bomber' To Join American Aerial Fleet

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—A new "super bomber," to join the Flying Fortresses and Liberators in smashing at the Axis, is scheduled for production, Charles F. Wilson, executive vice-chairman of the war production board, said Friday.

Aside from the barest reference to the craft in a statement on aircraft production made at a press conference Wilson smilingly shied away from giving any details on the new air monster or when it would be in action. When pressed by questions, he replied: "Well, bombers are getting bigger and heavier, and so-on."

The first hint of the giant bombers came several months ago from General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, who in a speech said "We have a secret weapon or two up our aerial sleeves that will deal paralyzing blows to our enemies." Then, referring to the aerial program, he said that "entirely new 'battlewagons' are on the way."

Wilson said a new aircraft plant at Marietta, Ga., which he described as "another Willow Run in size," would be in partial production this fall and "in good heavy production by the spring of 1944."

The plant will assemble planes and will "manufacture a large number of parts itself," Wilson said. He added that he believed its floor space would be "around four and a half million square feet."

The reference to the new air weapon came in connection with Wilson's statement that output of heavy bombers in April was four times greater than production one year ago, and by next April would be eight times greater.

On the basis of previously announced April production in excess of 500 heavy bombers, this would mean more than 1,000 heavy bombers monthly in April next year.

Wilson said that his figures for next April did not include the super-bombers.

Increased emphasis on heavier planes "doesn't mean that we aren't getting the numbers, too," Wilson declared. "Our schedules this year call for almost three times the number of both fighters and all bombers that were produced in 1942."

LEND-LEASE BILL

record appropriation of $29,463,687,198 for the navy during the fiscal year starting July 1 and passed a sharply-trimmed interior department supply bill of $72,861,316.

Testimony of the house appropriation committee on the lend-lease measure contained a statement from Stettinius that shipments of food to the Allies would increase from the six per cent of total output in 1942 to ten per cent in 1943. This indication of possible curtailment of domestic supplies was coupled with a committee statement that lend-lease "is a potent weapon of warfare without which other United Nations could not effectively fight and with the assistance of which the war will be shortened and the loss of life and human suffering will be diminished."

The house had before it during its consideration of the measure voluminous testimony that lend-lease materials from this country and reciprocal supplies from other countries to the United States are operating to whip the enemy through food, machinery and weapon production.

Stettinius related that during the first year of the program "more than two-thirds of all shipments went to the United Kingdom" but that during "the first three months of 1943 about one-third went to the U. S. S. R., a little more than one-third to the United Kingdom, and the rest to other war fronts."

"We have sent to Soviet Russia," he stated, "more planes, tanks and motor vehicles than to any other theater —45 per cent of the planes, 44 per cent of the tanks and 41 per cent of the motor vehicles."

Turning to the effects of lend-lease in reverse, Stettinius related that in the last six months of 1942 "we received a greater tonnage of supplies for our troops from the British * * * than we shipped from the United States to our forces in the United Kingdom."

Stettinius also disclosed that "through the month of February 1943 the amount of lend-lease cargo that has been lost through sinking was under five per cent."

Regarding food shipments to our allies and to fighting fronts, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard stated that lend-lease shipments "have cut down our food reserves in this country. It was a small sacrifice in comparison with the sacrifices that have been made and are now being made by our allies and our own forces on the fighting fronts."

MAY CHALLENGE

relations act. The war labor board (established by the president), had no authority to direct a violation of any of the provisions of the national labor relations act.

"The war labor board, by ordering the operators (the employer) not to negotiate with the United Mine Workers (the representative of the employe coal miner), did in fact order a violation of section 8 (5) of the national labor relations act, and by so doing: the national war labor board ordered a violation of the national labor relations act in that it ordered a commission by the coal operators of an unfair labor practice as defined under that act."

Lewis' return to Washington from New York Friday is believed to be related to such legal aspects of the coal case, as well as to his desire to get quicker action on the U. M. W.'s application for readmittance to the A. F. L. Coincidentally, or otherwise, the miners' staff lawyer, Welly Hopkins, returned to U. M. W. headquarters on the same day from an assignment in Colorado.

One source close to Lewis said it is not likely any legal action will be taken in advance of a WLB board decision in the coal case, on the theory that there is no point in forestalling a possible favorable decision. However, it is understood the ground will be canvassed and preparations made if any legal steps are deemed feasible.

also was possible that he died a natural death.

In either case, it was pointed out, the high command almost certainly would have dressed up his demise with heroic trappings to keep alive the legend of his success as a factor for national morale.

Other observers were doubtful of the harakiri theory; reports that other Japanese commanders killed themselves have lacked confirmation and have drawn Japanese denials.

President Roosevelt's comment on the passing of Yamamoto was, "Gosh!"

Yamamoto was Japan's foremost advocate of the union of air and sea power, and was one of the first commanders of any nationality to develop this combination to its maximum effectiveness.

Twenty years before Pearl Harbor, when he was only a commander and head of the navy's flying school at Kasumigaura, he already was fighting for a great expansion of the naval air arm. In 1936 he became chief of the navy's air forces and was able to put his theories into execution, making naval aviation the spearhead of Japan's war machine.

In 1939 he was made commander-in-chief of the combined fleet and spent the next two years in preparation for the war against America and Britain he frequently said was coming. The planning and execution of the Pearl Harbor attack has been credited to him, as has that other stroke of audacity and luck that broke British naval power in the Orient, the sinking of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse off Malaya only three days after Pearl Harbor.

For these feats he was cited in ordinances by Emperor Hirohito, rare honors for a Japanese. He received the same distinction after the Coral sea battle, however, when actually the Japanese had met defeat.

Yamamoto held a hatred for the United States which surpassed that of any other Japanese of high station, at least in vigor of its expression. Ten days after Pearl Harbor a Tokyo broadcast, apparently trying to build him up as a hero, quoted him as having written the following to a friend several months previously:

"Any time war breaks out between Japan and the United States I shall not be content merely to capture Guam and the Philippines and occupy Hawaii and San Francisco. I am looking forward to dictating peace to the United States in the White House at Washington."

KNOX

the Japanese were evacuating their remaining troops from Attu. "I don't think they are," he said with a grin. "We control the sea approaches to that island."

He declined to say what the next step in the Aleutians offensive might be with regard to the Japanese forces on Kiska island, 172 nautical miles southeast of Attu. Kiska has been all along the main Japanese base in that sector of the Pacific. Knox said that to discuss Kiska now would be to talk about future plans.

However, it was evident that the fall of Attu would isolate Kiska from supplies and reinforcements and it was expected that an American air and sea blockade of that island would be established immediately if it had not already been set up.

The American high command thus has two possible courses with respect to the conquest of Kiska. It may attack that island soon after the fall of Attu or it may wait several weeks to give the Japanese there time to starve and run short of men and ammunition. At present unofficial estimates put the Japanese strength on Kiska at upwards of 10,000 troops.

The only communique issued by the navy Friday on operations on Attu did not include any information concerning the progress of the fight. It said that on Wednesday Japanese forces had established positions on the high ground east of Attu village which is at the head of Chichagof harbor and that army bombers had attacked Japanese entrenchments in the area north of Sarana bay.

Navy officers said that since no announcement had been made that the island finally had fallen to American forces, which have been strongly supported by air and sea units, operations against the enemy remnants undoubtedly were continuing Friday.

The report of enemy positions in the hills east of Attu village, plus the information about entrenchments in the area north of Sarana bay, indicated that the Japanese held a rocky headland along a battle line about three to five miles in length with some immediate advantages in terrain which posed a tough problem for American troops.

The assumption here was that the enemy, having retreated into this rough country for a last-ditch stand, would fight it out rather than surrender. There did not appear, however, to be any tactical problem which the American force could not overcome by constant pressure along the line and heavy pounding of the strong points.

NAZI SUB YARDS

attack in which the strategic air force in North Africa has just scored one of its greatest victories.

These observers can find no reason —beyond the preparations for a renewed home-based R. A. F. offensive —for the fact that the R. A. F. fleet of four-engine front line bombers should have been kept grounded through more than a week of the "bombers' moon."

They speculate that the R. A. F. may be engaged in an immense amount of overhauling and planning needed to keep a gigantic assault going throughout the summer

They foresee the possibility that the new assault might begin with unprecedented attacks on Berlin or northern Italy to demonstrate the Allies' ability to carry out the knockout "experiment" suggested by Prime Minister Churchill in Washington Wednesday and enthusiastically seconded Thursday by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair said in a speech underscoring Churchill's knockout threat Friday that the Allies now are able to obtain a sufficient number of bombers to destroy "the sources of German war power."

Declaring that Berlin is the only place where the war can be ended, Sinclair said that there is "only one way of getting to Berlin without the slaughter which the land battles of the last war entailed, and that is the paralysis of the German war power."

MAJOR DRIVE

quire continual bombing sufficient to make these bases impotent. If United States forces could get a foothold at Rabaul they would have to starve out Bougainville, Munda and such places; cut off the supplies of planes, bombs, equipment and food.

A successful attack would cut off these intermediate points. But to cut them off would be a major task in itself.

The United States offensive in the Aleutians—use of Amchitka island 80 miles southeast of Kiska island and the offensive against Attu island 200 miles west of the Kiska enemy stronghold—may preview on a much smaller scale things to come in the southwest Pacific.

The Japanese are well entrenched at Kiska. American troops landed at Attu, while probably not great in numbers, were deemed sufficient to capture that island with naval support.

The size of that landing force was determined by experience. Of course, there always is an imponderable factor. It works in war and in all branches of human endeavor.

The imponderable includes such uncontrollable factors as the weather, the will to fight, and the ability to cope with the unforseen. Weather, chiefly heavy fog, handicapped the Americans landing on Attu.

The next step in the Aleutians undoubtedly is Kiska. That may not come for some time. Factors in the offensive against Kiska include the degree of Japanese determination to try to hold that island or keep it supplied as a base for air, sea and submarine raids in the Aleutians.

The degree of Japanese resistance in the Aleutians may influence the time of the next big offensive. If the Japanese divert sufficient strength from the southwest Pacific into the north to put up a desperate fight, the United States would find the going a little less rough in the General MacArthur-Admiral Halsey sector to the south of the equator.

The United States must be prepared for such a fight in the Aleutians if the Japanese choose to make that a major battleground.

FLOOD WIDENS

adults and high school boys and girls put a three-foot barrier of planks and sandbags atop the sea wall protecting the 6,500 residents of Beardstown, Ill.

The river lapped up to 27.6 feet there —an all-time record—but dropped a half foot after the Coal Creek drainage district levee across the swollen stream broke, and the water gushed across 7,000 acres of basin land. However, a crest of 30 feet was predicted for next Tuesday or Wednesday. That would bring the river to the top of the heightened dike, and officials expressed doubt that the temporary barricade would hold.

Upstream, at the busy industrial city of Peoria, the Illinois reached 26.8 feet, the highest in 99 years, and a crest of 28.3 was expected Monday.

The overflow invaded part of the business district in Alton, Ill., on the Mississippi. Downstream, Grand Tower, Ill., was flooded for the first time since 1844. New Athens, Ill., on the Kaskaskia river, experienced its worst flood, with four feet of water in the shopping section.

In neighboring Missouri, troops, state guardsmen and civilians were beaten in their battle against the inroads of the Missouri river in St. Charles county and shifted their fight to St. Louis county. The river broke through the last barrier in St. Charles county—an M. K. T. railroad embankment—sluiced across 8,000 acres and menaced the St. Charles residential sector. Coast guardsmen evacuated all women and children from West Alton, Mo.

STRIKE THREATENS CHRYSLER OUTPUT

DETROIT, May 21.—(AP)—The entire war effort of Chrysler corporation was threatened today as upwards of 20,000 members of the U. A. W.-C. I. O. remained away from their jobs for a second day in the most serious work stoppage in Detroit since Pearl Harbor.

A company spokesman expressed fear the strikes, which closed three plants yesterday and disrupted production in a fourth, might spread to the huge Chrysler tank arsenal. The spokesman said all 85,000 Chrysler workers in the country might be affected in a few days.

Workers at the three plants walked out in protest over what U. A. W.-C. I. O. President R. J. Thomas described as "legitimate and serious grievances." Thomas said, however, the strikes were not authorized and added he believed "the leaders are making a mistake trying to adjust these grievances through strikes."

The walkout began at the corporation's Jefferson-Kercheval plant and soon spread to the Dodge main plant and Dodge Lynch Road plant, shutting these down completely. In addition, several thousand workers at the Dodge truck plant were made idle by a lack of materials.

SIX DIE IN CRASH OF ARMY BOMBER

HOUSTON, Tex., May 21.—(AP)—Six army fliers were killed in the crash and explosion of an army bomber, identified as from a Greenville, S. C., air base, in a pasture 18 miles north of Houston last night.

Identification of the plane was established by Ellington field officials. They said it was a B-25 and six bodies had been recovered from the charred wreck.

Reports two men had parachuted from the plane could not be verified, and Ellington officials were inclined to believe them in error.

None of the men in the craft had been identified.

Spectators in the town of Westfield said they believed the ship was struck by lightning in the early stages of a thunderstorm. They said they saw the craft enter a small cloud and that when it emerged there was a flash of lightning. The ship wobbled, its right wing flapped crazily and it started spiraling down from a height of around 100 feet. During its fall one of its motors sheared off.

The plane exploded twice after it hit the ground. One of the explosions hurled the body of a passenger several feet from the ship.

TWO-DAY TOLL

Photographs showed that 58 of 59 enemy aircraft parked there were destroyed in a high-altitude precision raid that also left hangars, administration buildings and runways a shambles.

A headquarters spokesman described it as "some of the finest precision bombing of the war." Twelve out of 25 Italian three-engined bombers were blasted into junk at the Milas airdrome on Sardinia as Doolittle's men moved determinedly to gain absolute aerial domination in the Mediterranean.

A joint British and American communique disclosed that a total of 5,172 Axis planes were shot down in air combats in the Mediterranean area between the entrance of Italy into the war on June 10, 1940, and the collapse of the enemy in Tunisia this month. Of these, 1,757 were destroyed in the northwestern African campaign since the Allied landing last November.

Of the 58 planes destroyed at Grosseto Thursday by the Fortresses, 53 were either bombers or transports. Experts said the raid probably was the most successful of its kind ever attempted.

Lightning fighters fitted with bombs ranged the length of the big island of Sardinia, blasting bridges, trains and barracks. Mitchell medium bombers with Lightning escorts raided Villacidro airdrome northwest of Cagliari, destroying seven planes on the ground. Their twin-engined escorts shot down seven of 12 enemy fighters that challenged them.

A team of Marauder medium bombers and Warhawk fighters attacked Decimomannu airdrome on Sardinia, causing "tremendous damage to planes on the ground and in the air." They shot down 13 planes, including the seven big Merseburgs.

An Allied headquarters spokesman said that Lightnings dropped three bombs on a dam 10 miles east of Sassari near the gulf of Asinara. Lightnings and Warhawks also attacked the docks at much-bombed Pantelleria island and an airfield at Milis on Sardinia.

Malta-based squadrons continued to strike in conjunction with the North African strategic force.

German fighter-bombers with an escort of fighters raided Malta for the first time since December, but only a few bombs hit the little island after British fighters broke up the enemy formations.

DESTROYER SUNK

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—The Italian communique broadcast by the Rome radio today asserted an Allied destroyer has been torpedoed in Tunisian waters. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press. Grosseto, Messina, Pantelleria island and objectives in Sardinia were bombed yesterday by the Allied air force, the communique said.

GLENN BABB

man and means a loss in resource and flexibility.

Yesterday President Roosevelt disclosed that the British and American chiefs of staff were to submit some preliminary recommendations to him and Prime Minister Churchill last night. The president then said it is true that a large majority of American forces outside the United States are in the Pacific. The logical assumption is that the recommendations of the chiefs of staff are pointed at Japan.

Admiral Koga has the unenviable task of countering them. He must be ready to fight on three widely separated fronts simultaneously, the north Pacific, south Pacific and Indian ocean. It seems certain that before long the Anglo-Saxon powers will be able to array major naval and air forces in each of these areas. The resources at Koga's command are something of a mystery but it is sure that they soon will be overmatched if they are not already.

Although the reference books credit Japan with five battleships of more than 40,000 tons built or building, sound authorities believe that she has no answer to the United States' Iowa class, or even the smaller North Carolina and her sisters. In the air Japan is falling behind even more rapidly.

Admiral Koga's first test already may be taking shape in the fogs of the north Pacific. He and his superiors in Tokyo must decide soon whether they will let their Aleutian toeholds go by default. If they choose to fight they must be ready to call up greater strength than any previous test of this war has demanded.

Koga's command may begin with a disaster as overwhelming in its effect on Pacific strategy as was his predecessor's masterpiece, Pearl Harbor.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
St. John And Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Pastor's Associate

The pastor has returned from St. Joseph where he and Mrs. Hastings have been helping in a week of Bible and missionary teaching and will occupy the pulpit both hours Sunday. All the regular services of the church will be held at the usual time, beginning with Sunday school at 9:45. The Brotherhood and Baptist Training Union will meet at 6:30. Come and receive a blessing that you may be a blessing to others. Visitors and strangers are always welcome.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe, La.

The revival of the First Baptist church is still in progress and will end Sunday night. Great crowds are in attendance and a goodly number have united with our church. We believe Sunday will be one of the greatest days in the history of our church. Come and enjoy it with us. The subject will be "The Danger of Delay" for the morning worship and "Glorified Persistence" at the evening hour. The pastor will preach at both hours.

Sunday school 9:45 a.m. Training union and Brotherhood 7:00 p.m.

Sunday school 10:00 a.m. Morning worship 11:00 a.m. Training union 7:30 p.m. Evening worship 8:30 p.m.

Our revival is in progress, and the interest is deepening with each service. Dr. L. Bracy Campbell is bringing heart searching messages that are strengthening our hearts for battles before us.

We invite the public to attend these services that will continue into the following week.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH
812 Mississippi Street
I. J. Brooks, Pastor
Carlton Wade, Choir Leader

Sunday school 9:45. B. T. U. 7:30. Worship 11 a.m. Evening worship 8:15. Pastor will fill pulpit at both hours. We are looking forward with interest and very much prayer and concern to our meeting which will begin the third Sunday in June, with Dr. C. E. Autrey and his assistant, Dallas Goss. Our people are making all preparations and looking to the good Lord for a great victory, the public is cordially invited to be with us. If you have any good singers that you can give or lend send them along, we will appreciate them. We shall have as our guests, the Monroe police quartet, at the service Sunday at 8:15 p.m.

We plan to start cottage prayer meetings to prepare for the meeting on the first of June.

At the Sunday morning service the pastor will speak on "The Price of a Revival." In the evening service he will discuss "The Key to Success in a Revival Effort."

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
3400 Lee Avenue
D. D. Cantrell, Pastor
Lloyd L. Walters, Choir Director

Another great day in the Lord's service is planned on this Lord's day. Rev. R. B. Pearce, a preacher from the coal mining district, will be with us for the morning and we are expecting a great sermon to be given by him at the morning hour. All our people should not miss any privilege of worship whenever possible.

The Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a.m. Worship 11 a.m. The B. T. U. meeting 6:45 p.m. With all groups meeting in their departments for separate assembly, general assembly in the auditorium 7:40 and evening worship 8 p.m. Special early prayer Sunday 8:00 a.m. and mid-week prayer 8:00 p.m. Wednesday.

"Lord keep the churches open and going so the men in the armed service will have churches to come back to when the war is over," was the prayer of a fine young man home on a furlough as he prayed in our church recently. What a challenge, what a holy privilege we have! Will we not awake to our greatest resources in the kingdom service and give our best in these strenuous and difficult days?

All friends of this church are invited to worship with us in all these services, especially do we welcome all the visiting and newcomers to our city government or othe ractivity who are here in connection with the government or other activity. Let all the men in uniform know they are not only welcome, but graciously invited to worship with us.

Join with us that the Lord will bless His churches in all places where the gospel is privileged to be preached, and especially pray for us that grace and power to carry on as the Lord wills.

GOOD HOPE BAPTIST CHURCH

Ernest C. Adcock, Pastor

The Sunday school hour is 10 a.m.; B. T. U., 7:15 p.m.; preaching, 11 a.m. and 8:15 p.m.; singing, 2:30 p.m.

Our revival will start soon. Each member of the church is earnestly urged to put forth an honest effort to make the success of the revival a most enduring one.

J. P. Lindsey is leading the singing on Sunday afternoons. He has asked all members of the choir to meet with him if possible.

There are many songs in our new books that we need to learn. If you will come and practice them, we shall soon be able to sing them well.

You are cordially invited to worship with us. We try to make everyone who comes our way feel at home.

LOCH ARBOR BAPTIST CHURCH
A. O. Buckley, Pastor

Schools are closing and many young people are confronted by the question of what they will do with their lives. Let us encourage them to seek the Lords guidance, so that they will not make a mistake. Parents should train them in the way they should go and when they are old they will not depart from it. We welcome young and old to our services.

Sunday school, 10 a.m.; B. T. U., 7:30 p.m.; worship services 11 a.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Friday: Prayer meeting and choir practice, 7:45 p.m.

OAK GROVE BAPTIST CHURCH

CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER DAY SAINTS
307 North Second Street

10:00 a.m. Sunday school. Adults: Are science and religion antagonistic or in harmony? If you know the correct meaning of real science and true religion, there can be only one answer. A real scientist has in mind the same idea which possessed the Prophet Joseph Smith when he received his first revelation—an honest search for truth. Intermediates: "He hath put down the mighty from their seats and has exalted them of low degree." Not only do the adults need to be taught not to exalt themselves, but our children need to know the unseemliness of thrusting themselves to the front and "showing off." An humble, sacrificial life is one in which the Saviour rejoices.

6:45 p.m. Priesthood meeting. Where would you be if Adam had not transgressed? Many never stop to consider the fact that Adam was tempted but not deceived. The earth and its inhabitants were created for a purpose and those plans made by the Gods included the fall of man, thus giving all spirits an opportunity of inhabiting a mortal tabernacle and working out their own progression and eternal life and happiness.

6:45 p. m. Relief society meeting. "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof; it shall be a jubilee unto you." Leviticus 25:10. Our many shrines and monuments proclaim this precious liberty to the world and each one is dear to the heart of all true Americans, from the inspired Mayflower compact to the shrine to be raised in her hearts in the tragedies of tomorrow.

8:00 p.m. Sacrament meeting. He only is neighbor who does good to him who is in need. Jesus gave us this truth in His parable of the good Samaritan. This second great commandment mentioned by our Saviour is one of brotherly love (Matt. 22:36-39). We are surely living in times when the whole world is our neighbor. Can we prove ourselves worthy of the trust placed in us by our Father in Heaven?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES
Cor. Auburn Ave. And N. 2nd St.

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scients, Sunday, May 23, 1943.

The golden text is: "We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord" (II Cor. 3:18).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined" (Ps. 50:2).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Immortality, exempt from age or decay, has a glory of its own,—the radiance of soul" (p. 247).

Sunday school 9:30 a.m. Sunday service 11 a.m. Wednesday 8 p.m. Reading room 626 Bernhardt Building. Open daily 10 to 5 except Sundays and national holidays.

THE CHURCH OF GOD
305 Pine Street, Monroe, La.
T. E. Miller, Pastor

Again I would like to urge the entire church to be present Sunday morning to help make our Christ's World Service a success. We would like to have every father and mother, every young person, and every child present for this service. Our regular services are as follows: Sunday school at 9:45, morning worship at 11:00, Young People's meeting at 7:00, and evening worship at 8:00. Mrs. J. O. Mayo will be in charge of the mid-week prayer service Wednesday evening at 8:00. Everyone is welcome to all our services.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth And Glenmar Streets
Edw. Farren Hayward, Rector

Services for the fourth Sunday after Easter are as follows: The Holy Eucharist at 7:30 a.m., church school at 9:30 a.m., morning prayer and sermon at 11 a.m. Evencong will be said and sermon preached in St. David's, Rayville at 4:30 p.m. A special service for the men at the navigation school will be held in Grace church Sunday morning a 8:45 o'clock, followed by breakfast in the parish house. The service will be a celebration of the Holy Eucharist for the communion of the men who will attend.

Meditation. Subject: "And the Life Everlasting." Read Second Corintians fifth chapter. People who scorn the hope of immortality as sentimental are right if the hope is merely an amiable expectation. But they are wrong because they fail to see that death is always the last enemy for the Christian. On Sunday he celebrates not only victory over death, but even more, victory over sin. On this basis eternal life is a reasonable hope. Did you ever know anyone whose life was "consciously wrong, inferior and unhappy," who became "right, superior and happy"—to use William James' phrase? Do you believe such a thing possible? If you don't, death is good.

But if you have any inkling that here is power and joy to be had from God, then you can begin to see that when the last enemy comes it falls with the others. If you can really live now you will live hereafter. (If not, you don't want to.) We may begin now to be clothed upon with immortality. We do not have to wait until we die. Easter, and every Sunday does not have to do chiefly with the end of our lives. The power of His resurrection has to do with this afternoon, and Monday morning. The church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in rest, pray, give thanks, meditate. You are welcome.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH

At 6:30 p.m. the youth groups meet for an hour of worship and fellowship. An invitation to all young people to attend is extended. The church school hour is 9:30 a.m. Circle meetings of the Woman's Society of Christian Service will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. The monthly meeting of the board of missions is scheduled for Thursday, 5:15 in the church office. To friends of the congregation and to strangers, an invitation to worship with First church is extended.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH
Sterlington
Howard E. Pfost, Minister

Worship and sermon at 10:45 a.m., and 8:00 p.m. At the evening hour the pastor will conclude a series of seven sermons on the general theme, "The Meaning of God to Modern Man."

Church school at 9:45 a.m.

With all of the improvements that have been made, and all the furniture that has been bought for the parsonage, we are now free of debt. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

We had a great district conference Thursday, and the pastor wants to congratulate the men and the women and the women of the church for their fine work, and especially on the excellent barbecue that they gave the delegates and visitors of the conference, and other friends.

The Methodist youth fellowship will meet at the church Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service will meet with Mrs. Joe Miller in her home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Gilford Wright, president.

The Methodist men met Monday night at 8:00 o'clock. Prayer meeting Wednesday night, 8:25 to 9:00 o'clock. Choir practice to follow. Mr. Lee B. Stall, choir director; Mrs. Tom Wafer, pianist.

"O, come, let us worship Him!"

EROS METHODIST CHURCH
F. L. Hearne, Pastor

A great preacher who has just passed away told how one man in his congregation, who never missed a service, was a great stimulus to keep him from shirking or slurring his work. Every preacher knows the help or hindrance he gets by the presence or absence of some particular person in his place, yet, as likely as not, the person himself may never imagine he is in the minister's thoughts.

We never know how much we may add to or take from the service at the church. We can never tell how much we are missed when we would choose to do something else instead of filling our places at the church. It will take all of us at our very best to make the church in our community the kind of a church it should be. Will you do your part?

Sunday school at 10:00 a.m. Preaching service at 11:00 a.m. and 8:30 p.m.

There will be regular services at the Frantom church Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

STONE AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH
I. L. Yeager, Pastor
M. B. Hearne, Sunday School Superintendent

A story goes—"Down East a workman in felling and chopping up a tree discovered in the heart of it an initial that had been cut there by a woodsman when the tree was a mere sapling. Layer upon layer had grown upon it, but there it had remained until the heart was laid open after many years."

Things we say and do and are, make their impression on the boys and girls, on all we touch, to remain with them through the years. Will our lives be helpful or harmful?—Sel.

Public worship of the day begins with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Morning worship at 11 a.m. Christian Endeavor at 7:15. Miss Ruth Yeager, is the appointed leader. Evangelistic service beginning at 7:45 p.m. Bible

Mission To Moscow

The eminent liberal philosopher, John Dewey, and Suzanne of the Wisconsin La Follettes have taken the trouble to check the film "Mission to Moscow" against former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies' book of the same name, on which the picture supposedly is based.

Their research confirms what many who have seen the film and read the book felt, without exerting themselves to verify their suspicions. The picture plays fast and loose with the book.

This might be of no particular consequence if the picture were designed as a romance, a drama, a musical—anything in the pure entertainment field. Such criticism would be picayunish if the departures were technical—such as often are required to satisfy screen demands for continuity, cohesion and coherence.

But that is not the case. All the changes tend toward one obvious objective, which is achieved by them. They make the film what the book was not—in the words of Professor Dewey and Miss La Follette "totalitarian propaganda for mass consumption—a propaganda which falsifies history through distortion, omission or pure invention of facts."

To mention only a few of the discrepancies uncovered by the two critics:

The film, but not the book, shows Marshal Tukhachevsky being tried and condemned as a conspirator. The marshal, in fact, was executed secretly, without trial, more than a year before the film purports to have him in court.

The film shows Ambassador Davies accepting instantly the guilt of the purge trial victims, though the book records his concern because they were denied the elements of what Americans consider a fair trial.

The picture shows Moscow as gay, festive and happy. But the book records "horrifying" terror, with no household but lived in fear of "a nocturnal raid by the secret police."

The picture shows Stalin driven to his pact with Hitler by Anglo-American appeasement, with no reference to our desperate efforts to conclude a defensive alliance with Moscow.

Mr. Davies, back in the United States, is shown touring the country, ignoring his poor health, fighting isolationism. The fact is that the ex-ambassador's swing around the circuit was made after Pearl Harbor, when the nation already was united in support of the war that had been forced upon us.

There appears nowhere in the film any mention that it was Communist organizations, under orders from Moscow, which interfered in every way possible with our defense preparations and that Vito Marcantonio, consistent Red Fronter, cast one of the few congressional votes against conscription.

Ridiculously distorted efforts are made, in the film—but not in the book—to create an impression that Russia is our ally against Japan, ignoring the fact that only this year Moscow renewed her non-aggression pact with Tokyo.

The obvious purpose of the film is to promote American friendship toward Russia by hiding and distorting facts.

It is essential that the United States and Britain work in close harmony with Russia in this war and in the peace to come. It is not essential that the American people be lulled to sleep, making us do all the cooperating while Russia makes the rules.

Conceding the good intentions of the picture-makers, we think they have done a real disservice to the cause of democracy.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent

FORT BLISS, Tex.—The commanding officer of any unit in the army is supposed to be a father to his men, looking after their interests and giving them good advice in every conceivable situation.

The scene is a small patch of desert at this famous old Mexican border military post near El Paso. The big, bronzed captain of a cavalry troop, dressed in tin hat and sage-brush green coveralls of the new, tough herringbone twill, stands beside a peep. In his hands he holds a portable microphone attached to a loud speaker on the little green car.

In a 50-foot circle about him stand his men, bareheaded, but also dressed in coveralls and looking very fit indeed. They are paired off, as though they were preparing to play some new version of three-deep or maybe double drop the handkerchief.

The captain calls to a lieutenant to bring him a bayonet. And then, illustrating his remarks with gestures used on the lieutenant, the captain proceeds to give his men fatherly advice something as follows:

Don't use your fists against an enemy unless you have brass knuckles on and can hit him hard enough to kill him. You can't hurt a man with your bare fists, the way you play with each other around here.

Knife Method Is Efficient

A much better attack against a Jap is with the knife. The knife is silent. It makes no noise, and your enemy makes no noise if you hit him with it right. You may have to wait two hours until you get your man in just the right position, moving up on him quietly so that he doesn't see you. But finally as he is walking past at night on sentry duty, perhaps, you can get up to him and attack him from the rear, when his back is turned to you. Don't stab him in the back. That is ineffective.

Instead, carrying your knife in your upraised right hand, throw your left hand around his neck and push the knuckles of your thumb into his Adam's apple to shut off his wind and keep him from giving an alarm. That's what that bone in your thumb is for. Force him back against your body to throw him off balance. Now give him the knife. You can do it three or four ways.

If he is smaller than you are, plunge the knife right into his heart. Or, you can force it right behind his collar bone. There's a little hollow place there behind the bone that you can feel and it will just take the knife. Force it down, then give it a twist.

How To Handle The Big Fellows

If he is bigger than you are, and you can't reach over his body, force the knife right through his neck, through the windpipe, in the soft part above the Adam's apple.

Another way is to cut right through his arm at the muscle, and hold him till he bleeds to death. A man will bleed to death in 10 seconds, if you cut the veins and arteries of his arm.

If he gets away from you, or if you get him down and he isn't dead yet, or if you lose your knife, jump on his face with both feet. Bend your knees just a little as you spring, then straighten out your legs just before you land. You hit him double that way, with the force of your jump and the extra force of your kick as you stiffen your legs to plant your heels right in his face.

IN HOLLYWOOD

By Etskine Johnson
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

You've never heard of "Handlebar" Hank, or Duke York or "Iron Eyes" Cody or "Pebble" Stone? You haven't? Of course, you haven't. Their names never appear on the screen, or in the movie columns, or on theater marquees. But you have seen them hundreds of times in pictures, and they are as much a part of Hollywood as Lana Turner's sweaters or Veronica Lake's hair or Will Hays himself.

To the reporter who has covered the Hollywood beat for more than a couple of years, the most fascinating people on film sets are extras and bit players—not the stars.

"Handlebar" Hank and Duke York and "Iron Eyes" Cody and "Pebble" Stone are just a few celluloid nonentities we've come to know in quite a few years of trekking through the glamor jungle.

We saw "Handlebar" Hank just the other day. He was blowing the foam off a beaker of beer in the western saloon set of "A Lady Takes a Chance." His real name is Hank Bell, but everybody calls him "Handlebar" because of the long, droopy mustachios which are his trademark.

Hank was herding cattle when Tom Mix met him one day on location 30 years ago. Hank took one look at Tom's silver saddle, listened to his tales of the big dough in movietown and followed him back to Hollywood. Old Hank has been an extra now for 28 years, and he has worked in thousands of pictures.

Crack Shot

"Iron Eyes" Cody is a Sioux Indian who earned his credits in college as W. J. Cody. He's been in just about every western movie you've ever seen. They call him "Iron Eyes" because he can pin the villain's shirt to the wall with a bow and arrow and never produce a scratch.

Henry "Pebble" Stone reaches a towering 4 feet, 10 inches, weighs 100 pounds and wears a size 2 shoe. Henry is 43 years old and he still gets a little embarrassed when you ask him what he does in pictures. Henry makes a living standing-in for kid stars—until the kids outgrow him. He's worked for them all—Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper, Mickey Rooney, and right down the list. At the moment he's standing in for an 11-year-old, Freddie Mercer, for "Gildersleeve's Bad Day."

And then there's Duke York, who makes a specialty of doing living statues when he's not working as a stunt man. Duke has been a cigar store Indian in 37 pictures by latest count and he can stand for hours without moving a whisker.

Card Shark

Whenever there's a gambling casino set you'll find Charles Sylber dealing black jack. Charlie doesn't gamble but there are few men who can do more tricks with a deck of cards. A former stage comedian, Sylber now owns a magic business on Hollywood Boulevard, proudly wears the International Brotherhood of Magicians insignia, and works in pictures in his spare time.

There are hundreds of others. A former Pittsburgh millionaire who lost his fortune in the '29 crash—a paroled convict who serves as technical adviser for prison scenes when he isn't working as an extra—the widow of a big shot New York racketeer who was killed by rival mobsters.

WOMEN WON'T TALK

BY RENE RYERSON MART

COPYRIGHT, 1943, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER III

It was breathless in the house as the storm came closer. There was simply no use in trying to get the twins to take their afternoon nap in that heat. Connie and I took them out on the east terrace.

Connie romped with them awhile and then she threw the big ball out on the grass and told them to chase it. She dropped down in a wicker chair beside me under the awning.

The twins threw the ball about, shouting and shrieking. When it got away from Judy and rolled toward the ravine that shapes the east lawn into a triangle between it, the house and the lake, Connie called the children to come back. But the ball rolled over the bank and the twins went after it. Connie and I started to our feet. The walls of the ravine are nearly perpendicular in places and it is no playground for three-year-old babies.

But before we could reach them Jack and Judy came running back. Their eyes were wide.

"'Eere's a man over 'ere, an' he asseep," Jack jabbered to Connie. Judy, frightened, clung to her mother's skirts.

"Nonsense," Connie said. Kraiktower is five miles from the railroad and two from the highway. We're never bothered by tramps. "Judy fah over 'em," Jack insisted.

"You stay with Mom-mom and I'll go look," Connie said.

She came back in a moment walking in a queer, unsteady way, and I noticed that the rosy color was gone from her face. She called Miss Lake and told her to take the twins in and give them a cool bath. Then she turned to me and I saw that she was frightened.

"Mother," she said, and her teeth chattered, "there is a man there. But he isn't asleep—he's dead."

Connie and I waited until Miss Lake and the twins disappeared into the house. Then I walked with her to the edge of the ravine where Jack and Judy had gone after their ball.

It happened to be a spot where the ravine dipped gently for some yards forming a little hollow invisible from the terrace. A couple of giant oak trees and a number of small shrubs growing there further screened it from view.

At one end of this narrow glade, footholds had been carved into the steepening side of the ravine leading down to a natural cave at the bottom. It was a place where Kathy had loved to play as a child. She had had a den in the cave, and some rustic chairs and a table were still rotting there.

But it wasn't the cliff path or the cave beyond that glued my attention. As Connie and I pushed through the first fringe of bushes we almost stumbled over the body of a man lying face downward in the tall grass. There was a cut on the back of his head which had bled considerably, matting his dark hair.

Even before I knelt on weak knees and turned his head a little so that I could see his face, I knew who it was. There was no mistaking that head of curling black hair.

Before I could speak there came a rending of the tree tops above us, a crackling and snapping of branches, a splintering crash as if the very trees were falling upon us.

On top of our newly discovered murder it was more than Connie's nerves could take. She gave a shriek that echoed down the ravine, and toppled forward. She would have fallen on the dead man if I hadn't caught her. I eased her limp weight to the ground away from the body.

The next moment a man stuck his head through the bushes and peered anxiously in our direction. His face was scratched and bleeding. He followed his head into view and I saw that one arm hung limply. Clint Mattison had had a narrow escape that time.

His eyes moved beyond Connie to the body of the man on the trampled grass.

"That man's dead," I snapped at him. "My daughter-in-law just found him. Then you crash over our head and scare the rest of the wit out of her. She's fainted."

"I'm sorry," he said meekly. "What—what can I do?"

I don't know why it is. Men rise heroically to most emergencies, but when a woman faints they're as helpless as babies.

"You can help me carry her to the house," I snapped. "And then we'll—have to call the police."

Connie came to as we laid her on the divan in the living room. She looked at me, her eyes opening wide all at once and horror darkening their depths, but she didn't say a word. Clara, the maid, was whimpering and looking for some smelling salts in a desk drawer as I had directed her. Sarah, the cook, had come in from the kitchen and was standing looking on. Luckily, Miss Lake had taken the twins upstairs and they didn't know what was happening.

I wondered why Connie had fainted. After all she had been a nurse. She must have seen dead men before. Maybe she was going to have another baby.

Little Republics Look To U. S. And Britain For Help

(The people of the Baltic states, who hailed the Nazis at liberators in 1941, now are described by refugees reaching Sweden as ready to revolt if they can be assured it would not mean just trading German rule for Russian. For a guarantee of freedom, they look to Britain and the United States, says John Colburn in the last of a series of articles.)

By John Colburn

STOCKHOLM, May 21.—(AP)—Independence-minded leaders of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia are looking to Britain and the United States for help in extricating themselves both from German control and the fear of Russia, according to refugees arriving here.

Allied observers in this neutral listening post have received repeated overtures seeking a definite statement of policy from Anglo-American officials on the status of the little republics which have been subject to two foreign rules in three years.

These observers said the question might be one of those on the agenda of Joseph E. Davies' trip to Moscow.

They pointed out that if Stalin would renounce Russian claims on the Baltic states, many of the 5,500,000 people there would cease collaborating with the Nazis and revolt against them.

Stalin's assurance April 4 that Russia desired good post-war relations with an independent Poland was viewed as the type of statement desired with regard to the Baltics.

Copies of the Atlantic charter have been distributed widely in the area, but the majority of Baits thus far are not convinced that Russia's adherence means she has renounced her long-standing claims against them.

Two hundred years under the thumb of the Russian empire created a deep-rooted fear among the people that was further agitated when the Red army occupied the states in June, 1940, and they were annexed to the Soviet after elections which independence leaders claimed were no elections at all.

German propagandists have used this fear to obtain reluctant and limited help from the Baltic people, volunteer military legions, workers for German war industries and as an excuse for confiscation of crops.

The Germans also dangled before the Baltic leaders a promise that when Russia is conquered the Baltics would be given conditional independence.

The conditions are that the Nazi fuehrer shall have sovereign rights and that Germany shall conduct the foreign affairs of the three states, although each would have its own representative in Berlin.

Experts in Baltic affairs said that while the countries might be interested in an autonomous status—even with Russia—they want terms more in keeping with the independent traditions they cultivated as republics since the last war.

In Lithuania, which has provided the strongest opposition to Nazi efforts to Germanize the area, a hand-picked "national assembly" has been permitted to convene to discuss immediate policy.

It is the first assembly held since German civil officers began directing the affairs of the three states two years ago. No such assembly is reported from Estonia or Latvia, and observers speculate that the Nazis are awaiting results of the Lithuania experiment.

Reliable reports said that members of the Lithuanian group were so doubtful about the reason for their summons to the capital that they made their wills before leaving home.

While repudiating Bolshevism in one resolution, they are reported to have demanded a national army with Lithuanian officers.

Similar demands for armies have been made by Estonia and Latvia, all wanting to fight for independence.

MOST CURIOUS CALENDAR—The most curious of all calendars is the quippografical almanach of the Peruvian Incas, in which the data are represented by knots (quippos). The calendar is strangely accurate, considering the confusing plentitude of knots. The dates are included in the strange knotty combinations and interrelations. The writers of the knot characters were known as quippa camayu (knotmakers).

KIWANIS CLUBS IN JOINT MEET

Divisional Session Conducted At Hotel Here Thursday Night

The north Louisiana division of Kiwanis International held its divisional meeting at the Frances hotel Thursday evening with representatives of 10 north Louisiana clubs in attendance.

The Monroe and West Monroe Kiwanis clubs acted as co-hosts for the meeting which was attended by 172 members of the Kiwanis clubs from Alexandria, Bastrop, Bossier City, Monroe, Pineville, Rayville, Ruston, Shreveport, and West Monroe.

The program was opened with the invocation by Rabbi F. K. Hirsch and was immediately followed by group singing led by Carl Mauzy, of the Shreveport Kiwanis club, and assisted at the piano by Mrs. Odom of Shreveport.

Guests at the dinner were introduced by E. N. Thompson, president of the Monroe club, and his introduction included: Governor and Mrs. Albert J. Brewerton of Greenwood, Miss.; Lieutenant Governor Al V. Zimmerman and Mrs. Zimmerman of Alexandria; Past Governor George A. Meadows and Mrs. Meadows of Shreveport; Immediate Past Secretary and Treasurer Joseph J. Levy and Mrs. Levy of Shreveport; Professor Hull, chairman of inter-club relations for Kiwanis International; and former Division Secretary Reggie Hatchell and Mrs. Hatchell of West Monroe.

Louie Throgmorton, of Shreveport Kiwanis club, as toastmaster introduced Governor Albert Brewerton who made a short speech telling of the achievements of the Louisiana, Mississippi and west Tennessee division of Kiwanis. In this speech he mentioned that 16 per cent of the members of this division are now in the armed services, which is the largest percentage of any Kiwanis division.

Ted Kramer of Shreveport entertained with accordion solos and was followed by a vocal solo by Cary Mauzy of Shreveport.

The main address of the evening was made by Bryant Davidson, Shreveport Kiwanian, who spoke on the subject of "I Am An American." In his speech, Mr. Davidson brought out the fact that the people of the world looked to America as an example and as a leader for the rest of the world. This is due to the success of achieving in such a short time leadership in world affairs. Mr. Davidson said that Americanism means a great deal to us as well as to the rest of the world.

This divisional meeting had the largest attendance of any divisional meeting yet held. The invocation at the close of the meeting was given by Leslie Ross of the Monroe club.

SPEAKERS TELL OF BOYS STATE PLANS

The usual Thursday meeting of the Exchange club was held in Hotel Frances, at the noon hour.

The program comprised two interesting talks, C. B. Braun, chairman for Boys State, and Assistant Superintendent L. M. Lee of the Louisiana Training institute, told of features of Boys State. Both assured that a really constructive work is being done by Boys State each summer in Baton Rouge. The Exchange club is participating having arranged to enter Claude Smith of West Monroe as representative.

Last week's meeting was held at Harold Mouk's camp San Souci with members, their wives and others present. A most enjoyable time was had by all present, it was reported.

OPA REFUSES PLEA TO CANCEL COUPONS

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—The Office of Price administration has rejected a proposal from the agriculture department to cancel temporarily all A, B and C ration coupons along part of the Atlantic seaboard, to meet the gasoline shortage emergency.

"As far as OPA is concerned, no curtailment or elimination of A, B or C rations now is contemplated," an OPA spokesman said today when asked about the agriculture department's plan.

He indicated that OPA would depend on curtailment of T rations, used by taxis, trucks and other commercial vehicles, and on the eastern pleasure driving ban to ride out the period of emergency.

The agriculture department proposal—prompted by a food production crisis caused by the stoppage of tractors in the northeastern states—envisaged no curtailment of allotments to farmers or non-highway users of gasoline.

OPA's counter-argument was that some B and C rations are fully as essential as commercial and industrial rations.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—The matter of ration cards for cats and dogs is brought to my attention again by Mrs. Elizabeth Brockmeyer, of Enterprise, Fla. She notes that she and many friends are giving up points of their own to feed their cats and dogs.

I see no reason why our big-brains boys should not take this matter seriously. I'm told that in England the dogs are rationed, just as are people. England is a notably humane country in the matter of treating animals well.

If the English can afford to feed their dogs and cats, so can we. And it shouldn't be done by taking food away from the human masters and mistresses of these animals in this country, any more than in England. We ship the food to England, and make those allied people a present of it, calling it lend-lease so as to be polite all around.

That's fine. But our dogs are entitled to the same consideration as English dogs. Is the ASPCA working on this?

Mrs. E. A. Houghton, of Sidney, N. Y., says she uses Gee Whillikins! as an exclamation all the time, and corrects me for referring to it as a cuss word. Well, what is a cuss word, anyway? The worst one we had in our farm community was Darn it all! We young boys were not permitted to say darn.

John A. Shields, of Seymour, Indiana, has found a column which, he says, resembles this one, in a London newspaper of the time of the American Revolution. John for many years collected files of English newspapers and journals of that era, and has lent most of his files to Yale university.

One of the most interesting collections exhibited in New York in many a day is the collection of nearly a thousand pieces of early American wooden ware, at the Folk Art Center, on Fifth avenue.

Mary Earle Gould, of Worcester, Mass., not only started this collection from scratch, as a hobby and built it up into the finest of its kind in the world, but, as a result of her interest in her hobby, has written the authoritative book on the subject. I like the one-piece wooden bowls, made by hand, and the ingenious lard-squeezers.

Wilfred Funk, the word man, spends most of his days and nights reading dictionaries, and never complains that the subject is too often changed. He's now at work on a word book that will list the words used by successful people. The theory is that using these words made them successful.

Here's a tip, Wilfred: Don't miss Mr. Roosevelt's agayne and agayne and agayne, or his still better word, wholly.

Speaking of words and Roosevelt, the I-ringers had a field day after the president's address to the coal miners. He used I and me and my exactly forty times.

And I make a game of checking up on Gabriel Heatter's use of the word, man, and its plural, men. In a recent news broadcast he used it fourteen times. He goes miles out of his way to drag in men.

Gee-Whack! is a cuss-word I hadn't heard until I had a note on Indiana exclamations by Mr. H. D. Fyffe, of New Market, Indiana.

He says Judas Priest! Gee-minetly! and Jeerusalem! were also common expressions in his neighborhood, up to a few years ago.

Mrs. J. E. Gerard, Mineral Wells, Texas, raises the question of cruelty to school children by teachers. Is it cruel to whip children before their schoolmates, or to subject children to humiliation before the school?

In my opinion, such treatment is not only cruel, but barbarous, and should be prohibited by law.

BOLIVIA DEVELOPS RUBBER GROWING

NEW ORLEANS, May 21.—(AP)—President Enrique Penaranda of Bolivia said here Thursday that his country is destined to become an important agricultural nation, pointing out that among new crops which are being developed there is rubber, vitally needed for motorized warfare.

"We seek now to develop the country's agriculture so that at least it will be self-subsistent," he said.

President Penaranda, en route from New York to Texas City, Tex., to inspect a tin-smelting plant, averred that Bolivia "has seen its wealth increase greatly as a result of the war, and with its new wealth has instituted a program designed to improve permanently the economic status of the nation."

He referred particularly to the increased demand in the United States for Bolivian tin, asserting that because of the added economic dependence of the two Americas on each other "Pan-Americanism is more real today than ever before."

OKALOOSA WOMEN HAVE CLUB MEET

The Okaloosa Home Demonstration club met recently in the home of Mrs. C. P. Holloway. The roll call was answered with the names of dried fruits and vegetables that the person had in her pantry.

Mrs. Jewel L. McQuiller discussed the dehydration of fruits and vegetables. She showed the model of a dryer that could be made at home for use on the cookstove.

Pennies for friendship for British gardens were donated by club members.

The next meeting of the club will be in the Okaloosa High school gymnasium, June 8 at 2 p.m.

BURMA FORCE ENDS MISSION

Invading British And Native Troops Smash Japanese Lines

NEW DELHI, India, May 21.—(AP)—A force of British and native troops that wrecked Japanese rail lines in northern Burma and hampered a Japanese offensive against India has completed its mission after three months of bitter jungle guerilla warfare, a special British communique announced today.

Rivalling the exploits of Lawrence of Arabia, the forces were led by Brigadier Charles Orde Wingate, 39, kin to the legendary T. E. Lawrence.

The size of his force was not disclosed, but eight columns, with nearly 1,000 supply bearing mules, moved into Burma in mid-February to smash at the Japanese rail lines on a 300-mile front between Mandalay and Myitkyina.

"Certain columns penetrated more than 200 miles into Burma," the communique said. "Early in March they put out of action the railway link running from Mandalay through Katha to Myitkyina. Demolition charges destroyed tracks and bridges in 75 places and rendered further operation of this vital line of communication impossible for many months."

Preston Grover, Associated Press correspondent in India, saw the first of the hardened jungle veterans at a British frontier post when they completed their return march from the far shores of the Irrawaddy river. Correspondents were not permitted to go with the force and its operations were a secret to the outside world while the British army in western Burma was making a slow withdrawal west from Buthedaung and north from Rathedaung.

Grover said that before Wingate's fighters came back they ate most of their mules and horses and had learned to live on tender bamboo shoots and banana and palm leaves.

Some of the men ate snake meat and many used their mosquito head nets to catch fish.

Convalescing soldiers told Grover one large force spent a week at a rendezvous east of the Irrawaddy living on mule meat and crackers.

Their only communication was by radio, and during the operations many batteries went dead.

American planes with British crews sought out parties as best they could, dropping bread and other food, letters, spectacles—and snuff for kilted Lieutenant Jeffrey Lockett, whose Gurkhas used it instead of curry powder in their rice, Grover reported.

In some cases the forces had to fight off Japanese troops who spotted the dropped supplies and engaged the British troops.

Grover said the success of the force was sevenfold:

They blew up 100 miles of railroad and several bridges.

They delayed a Japanese move against the Chindwin river barrier, near the India-Burma frontier.

They relieved Japanese pressure on the Chinese to the north.

They saved an encircled force of 5,000 loyal Burma natives by drawing off a Japanese army.

They riddled the Japanese feeling of security in Burma.

They gave the British forces invaluable training in jungle war

They proved Wingate's contention that with quick training he could make allied troops equal to jungle-fighting with the Japanese.

Some of the force had had six months training. Others had trained for only a month before crossing the border into Burma, and then toiling up and down the north-south mountain ranges in their path.

The communique said superior forces of the enemy were engaged and beaten in numerous clashes east of the Irrawaddy and that when ordered to return, the majority fought their way back, "although in many cases under conditions of incredible hardship."

Yield of a western apple orchard was increased from 1400 to 6000 bushels, after hives of bees were placed near the trees. The bees carried pollen from blossom to blossom.

BROTHER, SISTER SPAN LONG GAP

Chief Roddy Sees Relative First Time In 23 Years

There was a happy reunion of two members of a family long separated when Frank J. Roddy, Monroe fire chief, and his sister, Mrs. L. A. Blyth, of Charleston, S. C., met for the first time in 23 years.

The Roddy family, which comprises two brothers in Charleston, S. C., Frank Roddy of Monroe; and two sisters, Mrs. Blyth and Mrs. Ernest Darby, Washington, D. C., have been separated chiefly through the fact that Frank J. Roddy has lived so far remote from the others.

Many times Mrs. Blyth has thought of her brother in Monroe and resolved to pay him a visit but the time never seemed to come when she could travel. Recently now her son has entered the air corps and is a cadet stationed near Memphis, Tenn. This was sufficiently an impelling force for the making of the long trip by bus. She took along her daughter, Anna, and together they went to Memphis. After completing their visit there, they came on to Monroe to once more see the member of the family living here.

Brother and sister enjoyed the reunion to the limit and had many tales to recount in the interval of 23 years. Two years ago, Chief and Mrs. Roddy visited Boston, making the trip by way of Charleston, S. C., but when they got there Mrs. Blyth was away on a visit and so they missed seeing her as they had planned.

Mrs. Blyth will leave Friday night by bus on her return trip to South Carolina. She was delighted with Monroe and felt that the trip was well worth even the inconvenience of travel in wartime.

Incidentally Mrs. Blyth's husband has been a patent maker for the United States navy yard for more than 30 years.

ROTARIANS HEAR OF ARMY LIFE

L. McCarley Tells Of Experiences; Birthdays Are Recognized

The principal speaker at the Rotary club's luncheon at Hotel Virginia, Thursday noon, was L. McCarley, member of the Monroe Rotary club, now in the air corps of the army, stationed in Missouri. He described the typical life in the army today and the attitude found among the men. He said that he found Rotary spirit of friendliness and fellowship existing in the army which he attributed as one reason for its success.

Birthdays recognized were those of Thomas Frazer and Clifford Strauss who were honored in the usual manner.

Rotarian Harvey Trousdale and Rotarian Abe Arent were present for the first time since their recent illness. They were congratulated by Joe Marx, Sr., president of the club on their recovery.

A visitor at the luncheon was P. J. O'Reilly, of New Orleans, nephew of Rotarian Nick Slator.

GARDEN CLUB HAS PROGRAM MEETING

FERRIDAY, La., May 21.—(Special)—The Tensas Garden club held its May meeting in the community house. Hostesses were Mrs. Bruce Bufkin, Mrs. George L. Burleson, Mrs. Hugh Roberson and Mrs. Philip Watson. A vase holding a bouquet of snowballs was placed on the president's table.

The program given was as follows: "Legend of the Sweet Pea," by Mrs. Shirley Briggs; "The Garden Pool," by Mrs. Fred Cassil; "Construction of a Pool," by Mrs. N. Bruno; "Rock Gardens and Pool Decorations," by Mrs. Joseph Whitaker.

At the close of the program a plate luncheon was served.

43-7 WILL HEAR MAJOR MORRIS

Bombardier Proficiency Officer Of AAFNS Speaks Saturday

Major Jack E. Morris, bombardier proficiency officer of the Navigation school at Selman field, will deliver the graduation address at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when Class 43-7 receives its navigators' wings in ceremonies in the post theater.

Major Morris will be introduced by Lieutenant Colonel Clifton D. Wright, commanding officer of the Navigation school.

Colonel Earl L. Naiden, the post commanding officer, will present diplomas to the top ranking cadets of the class and to group and squadron officers individually, and to flight lieutenants on behalf of their flights.

Major Morris, who recently arrived here in connection with the training of bombardiers as navigators, won his bombardier's wings in 1941. A former resident of Los Angeles, he is a graduate of the Central Instructors' school at Carlsbad, N. M.

He has served at Lowry, Randolph and Ellington fields and at the bombardier schools at Midland field and Big Spring, Tex.

The Post band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Willard I. Shepherd, will lead the graduating class to the post theater.

The graduation exercises are open to the general public. Persons wishing to attend should call Captain Theodore B. Merrill, telephone 6400, extension 385.

G. M. And Mrs. Akin, Pastors

A little girl went to church on Sunday morning, but her parents stayed at home because they felt tired. When the little one returned, the father asked, "What did our pastor preach about this morning, dear?" "I don't remember all," said the child, "but I think his text was, 'Many were cold and few were frozen.'"

Church attendance is a good way to keep our spiritual lives warm and our interest in things worth while pertaining to God's kingdom at fervent heat.

You are invited to attend services Sunday with us. The pastor will bring the morning sermon at 11 o'clock and the evening evangelistic sermon at 7:45.

S. P. Quigley will open Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Young People's meetings will be held at 6:45 in the evening. Woman's Home Missionary society will meet Tuesday evening at 7:45 in the home of Mr. R. H. Thornhill, 3001 Richmond street.

"Man's Highest Ministry" is the subject to which our thoughts will be turned. Does man have a high ministry? What is the nature of that ministry? Upon what does that ministry rest? It is well to think to this theme, for all of us bewildered.

"The Makers of Peace" is the theme of the evening message. Jesus blessed the makers of peace. What an idea to consider in the midst of a world conflict! The mere fact that he blessed the peacemakers augurs peace sometime, yea at His hour.

The attendance at the Sabbath school is not what it should be. The fathers and mothers of the congregation are urged to come with their children for the study of the Bible. "Study to shew thyself appoved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

HIGH SCHOOL HAS ANNUAL BANQUET

ST. JOSEPH, La., May 21.—(Special)—The annual junior-senior banquet of Davidson High school was held in the community house Thursday evening. The table was shaped like an airplane and the center decoration was a miniature hangar with miniature planes inside. Miniature planes were placed around the table and red, white and blue colors were stressed in the flowers utilized. The menu cards and place cards completed the army air corps and patriotic theme. A delicious four-course banquet was served.

In attendance were 39, which included members of the faculty, the junior and senior classes, C. V. Rives, superintendent; Fred Skinner and Hollomon Cook, members of the school board.

The program included songs, reading of prophecies of the two classes and the faculty by Mary Clara Guice and Catherine Bondurant; reading of the senior class will by Earline Davis, and dancing.

George E. Thomas, senior class president, gave a speech of thanks to the juniors. W. L. Westbrook, president of the junior class, served as master-of-ceremonies.

TRACT ISSUED ON STOCKINGS

OWI And OPA Say Women Have Acquired 'New Shopping Habit'

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—The Office of War Information and the Office of Price Administration joined hands today to explain stockings to women.

Despite a certain teaching-fish-to-swim handicap, the mimeographed explanation started out bravely by crediting "a new shopping habit" to our alert womenfolk.

This habit, it appeared after a little careful study, is to look at the price label so as to know how much the stockings cost.

On the tag, along with the ceiling price, appear words like "gauge," "circular knit," "irregulars," and "seconds."

These terms, which "once had a hazy meaning vaguely connected with quality in the woman shopper's mind, now are coming to have distinct and definite meanings," asserted the OWI-OPA authors, clearing away the mists.

After defining "gauge" as the number of stitches per inch-and-a-half, and "circular knit" as knitting in a circular fashion on a number of needles, the informants brushed off other terms as "not bothersome."

"Most important thing for women to remember about them," the agencies added judiciously, "is that they are lower in price than first quality stockings."

Just to make sure the mists were really cleared away, the agencies got busy and defined seconds as: "A pair of substandard quality stockings in which one or both contain any obvious mends, runs, tears or breaks in the fabric or any substantial defect, irregularity or imperfection in material, construction or finish. Welt (top) menders must not be more than one-half inch long; leg menders or seamers not more than one-fourth inch, and there must not be more than two medium or three small menders."

"Thirds" are like seconds, only worse.

Until July 16 both grade A and grade B rayons will be sold at grade A prices, the authors announced. This may be baffling to the housewife and stenographer, but is designed to prevent a price squeeze on the seller.

Honor Conferred Upon Miss Boardman

Miss Joan Boardman Will Return Confederate Flag To Its Home State

An honor has just been conferred upon Miss Joan Boardman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Boardman of this city, who is attending the University of Wisconsin. She will return the tattered Confederate flag, which was carried by the Pelican Rifles of Louisiana, to its home state.

Dr. Edward P. Alexander, executive director of Wisconsin's Historical society said recently that Miss Boardman "is an excellent choice as Louisiana's emissary because age exemplifies the close friendship of the two states." Her father is a 1910 graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin legislature recently authorized return of several flags to southern states, including one to Mississippi.

Interest is running high in Little Theatre circles over the last play of the season, "Heaven Can Wait," better known perhaps by its movie title, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," to be presented Monday night at Neville High school auditorium under the direction of Mildred Merrill.

The occasion will be a gala one with the social side of things stressed. Mrs. William Harper and other prominent members of the Little Theatre will serve as ushers thus lending a note of cordiality to an event that promises to be outstanding in Little Theatre circles.

As usual these days, the cast represents Little Theatres from all parts of the country, south, north, east, and west. Mr. Jordan, played by Lieutenant Kenneth Laughlin, and Mr. Williams, played by Lieutenant Fred Libby are from the Atlantic seaboard having played in Little Theatres in Maine; Lieutenant Lewis Appelbaum, who has the lead, is from Los Angeles, Calif. There are about ten people from Louisiana, and the rest are from Utah, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Texas.

The movie, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan" was one of the most popular of Robert Montgomery's career. The play, has just as much if not more to offer. There is everything in it from heavenly messengers to murders.

The cast is a large one, including Charlene Lane, Jane McKnight, Nell Grigsby, Beverly Russel, Barbara Laughlin, Lieutenants Lewis Appelbaum, Kenneth Laughlin, Robert Thompson, Maurice Marler, Jack Homelsky, and Fred Libby. Captain Theodore Merrill is also in the cast, as well as Roy Henderson, Alfred Cohen, Everett Lawson and Jase Johnson.

Mrs. Paul Neal has assumed the responsibility for the make-up, one of the most important features of this production. Mrs. John Guerriero is costume chairman and Miss Marilyn Marshall and Mrs. Thomas Serwich are busily engaged gathering the properties. Mr. Serwich is stage manager.

Nap-time is most frequently greeted with rebellion on the hot bright days of summer. When all the world around them is busy and wide awake, youngsters find it hard to relax—no matter how tired playtime has made them. But pediatricians are agreed that the mid-day rest period is essential for the pre-school child, so mothers are eager to provide conditions conducive to relaxation.

Making nap-time a consistent and unvarying part of the day's routine is the first important step. Removing all constricting clothing and arranging for a period of quiet amusement shortly before bedtime is also recommended to help an over-stimulated youngster relax.

Studies have proved, too, that darkness is one of the greatest single factors in restful daytime sleep for both children and adults. Sleep comes sooner and is deepest and most restful when the sleeping room is dark. Completely light-proof window shades drawn to the sills, can provide restful darkness at any hour of the day.

And window shades, whether light-proof or not, can be put to use to keep the sleeping room cooler, too. For if the shades are drawn when the sun comes around, tests have proved that rooms can be kept as much as 10 degrees cooler. In winter the same principle operates to prevent heat loss through window glass. Shades can be put to work to save as much as ten per cent on the total fuel bill. When the shades are drawn, a dead air space is formed between the cloth and the glass which acts as a very efficient insulator.

Dorothy Dix:

Double-Dyed Villain Betrays Wife, Girl in Weekend Idea

Women Would Give Souls to Present Clean Record When Good Men Offer Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 18, very much in love with a married man. He is leaving for the army soon, but before he goes he wants me to spend a week-end with him. He will tell his wife he has gone on a business trip. I live in an apartment with a girl, and I will tell her I am going home over the week-end, so no one will ever be the wiser.

I know this is fundamentally wrong, but cannot the bonds of propriety be dispensed with this once? It would mean so much to both of us. Please help me, as your answer will govern my decision.

BEWILDERED

DOROTHY DIX

PLAYS ON GIRL'S IGNORANCE

ANSWER: There is something much more than the bonds of propriety to be considered in a case like yours. There is the breaking of one of the Ten Commandments that God Himself laid down for the regulation of our conduct. Believe me, my child, no woman does that without paying the penalty.

It is not just an ordinary week-end that you are contemplating taking. It is doing something that will affect your whole life and that you cannot undo, no matter how bitterly you repent it. It is not breaking a convention that matters; it is parting with the principles in which you have been reared; it is losing your self-respect. It is not the gossip around your office that you need fear; it is facing your own conscience in the dead of night. It is doing something that you will live in fear of your mother finding out. Is any passing pleasure worth that price?

If you were not so young and unsophisticated, you would know that any married man who tries to persuade an 18-year-old girl, living away from her family and with no mother to watch over her, to guide her, no father to protect her, into spending a week-end with him is such an unspeakable cad that he would be cast out of decent society if it were known. He is a double-dyed villain because he is betraying his wife as well as intending to betray you.

He isn't making even the poor pretense that most married Lotharios do, of promising to divorce his wife and marry you. He is just taking it for granted that you are so idiotically in love with him that you won't count the cost at all, which indicates that he thinks you are a poor little simp who doesn't know her way around in a wicked world.

As he won't, let me warn you of a few of the dangers that you will run. The first is that you can't count on no one finding out about your little escapade. The chances are that such a bounder as he is, will brag about it to other men to show what a devil he is among the ladies. The second is that almost surely you will run across somebody who knows one or the other, or both, of you. And there are always hotel servants who have eyes even in the backs of their heads and plenty of tongue.

Then, consider this, long and prayerfully. When this married man leaves you, your little romance is finished, and when you are no longer exposed to his personal fascinations you will begin to get a true perspective on him, and you will not only cease to love him, but to be ashamed of yourself that you ever could have loved so poor a creature. You will have a good crying spell or two and the whole business will be washed up, literally and figuratively.

You will meet a lot of nice boys, and you will fall in love with some worth while lad and he will ask you to marry him. Suppose, then, you have that week-end to remember. He is a clean young chap with high ideals. Do you think he is going to want to marry you when you tell him about it? And if you don't tell him about it, don't you think you are going to live in perpetual fear of his finding out?

A lot of girls who have gone off on romantic week-ends write me that they would give their very souls to be able to go with clean skirts to their husbands. Be one of them. Don't go on the petting party.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is subject to be called into the army any day now. But he says before he goes he is going to sell our furniture and get rid of our home. He says he is going to be a free man again. Don't you think that as long as he feels this way about it, it would be best for us to break up now before he goes away? We have two children. What of them?

J. J.

MOTHER SHOULD KEEP HOME FIRES BURNING

ANSWER: Your husband is like a lot of other men who are fed up, for the time being, with domesticity. He thinks he is going to have a grand fling in the army, but he is due to get a lot of disillusionment about that. When he finds that he is subject to a discipline that he never even imagined, he is going to wish that he was back home with you and the children.

My earnest advice to you is just to stay put. He can't sell your home unless you sign the deed. Refuse to do it. Tell him you are going to live in it and keep it a going concern until he can come back. The government will pay you your allotment of his salary, so you will have that much to help feed the children, anyway, whereas you would have nothing if you agreed to a divorce before he goes.

Many husbands, and wives, too, get tired of the monotony of marriage and think they want to be free and rush into the divorce courts, but after they have been parted for a while they find that their freedom is not what they thought it would be; that they miss each other and that they love each other in spite of their disagreements.

I think that is the case with you and your husband. So just let matters rock along for the duration. With your own home and your allotment and perhaps doing a little work on the outside you can get along, but you would be stranded if you let him sell the house and the furniture and left you with nowhere to go and nothing to live on.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 18 years old and have been going steady with a young man in the navy for about four months. Two months ago he was sent across and his letters have not only been few and far apart, but not love letters. Read like they were written to an aged aunt. Now I find that I am in love with another young man who is in the army, and I don't know how to go about telling my navy friend about this. How shall I do it?

SANDRA

ANSWER: Just state the simple facts. As his letters are so cold and unlover-like, the chances are that he has found out since he parted from you that he guessed wrong, as you did, about his heart-throbs, and that he will welcome a letter setting him free.

Bars Presented Women For Service

It is interesting to note that more than 122,465 surgical dressings were completed during the month of April by members of the local Red Cross surgical dressing division according to Mrs. Joe Marx. Mrs. Marx also reports that 1,328 workers spent 8,998 hours during the month of April working in the various units.

Mrs. Harry Black reports that 25 boxes containing 196,200 dressings were sent to New Cumberland, Penn.

Claiming interest among the surgical dressing workers was the presentation last week of bars for three years of faithful and loyal service. Mrs. Joseph P. Brown, general chairman of the Red Cross surgical dressing division was privileged to present bars to: Mrs. D. T. Milam, Mrs. Harry Black, Mrs. Douglas Miles, Mrs. James Standley, Jr., Mrs. W. A. Whitfield, Mrs. Henry Hinkle, Mrs. Herbert Rosenhein, Mrs. Henry Guerriero, Mrs. Evelyn Thomas, Mrs. Jack Ansell, Mrs. Albert Marx, Mrs. T. J. Sandridge, Mrs. William Mintz, Mrs. Louis Hullum, Mrs. Isaac Lemle, Mrs. Ray Rhymes, Mrs. Ted Mahr, Mrs. Joe Marx, Mrs. C. H. McHenry, Mrs. William Bendel, Mrs. Sam Bendel, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Mrs. Edgar Masur, Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. Clem Dickard, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. Wharton Brown, Mrs. M. C. DeLarot, Mrs. R. L. Davis, Mrs. Amos Smelser, Mrs. J. W. Cummins.

Mrs. Walter Minnear was recently appointed chairman of the Ridge avenue surgical dressing unit in West Monroe.

Considerable sentiment and profound interest is centered in the announcement that a new United States destroyer escort vessel has been named the "Savage," in memory of a gallant young man, Ensign Walter Savage who made the supreme sacrifice for his country December 7, 1941, in the battle of Pearl Harbor.

The "Savage" will be launched at the plant of the Brown Shipbuilding company, Houston, Tex., June 9. Mrs. Walter S. Savage, mother of Ensign Savage, will christen the ship.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Eva Blair, daughter of Mrs. Andrew Mullins of West Monroe and Dr. S. P. Lingo, May 1. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ernest Holloway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

The bride wore a lovely costume suit of powder blue crepe with white accessories with a corsage of split pink carnations and white bride's roses.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. M. Lingo, 504 Sherrouse avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. Lingo are now at home to their friends at 412 South Third street, West Monroe.

Dr. Lingo is chief chemist at the Dixie Ordnance Works. He came to Monroe from Terre Haute, Ind. He is associated with the Commercial Solvents corporation.

Beautifully engraved invitations have just been received as follows:

Mrs. Harvey Darnell
requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of her daughter
Mary Frances to
Mr. John William Perry on Sunday afternoon, June sixth at five-thirty o'clock
Dermott Methodist Church
Dermott, Arkansas

Reception at home of the bride immediately after the ceremony

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Beatrice T. Medaris, of Miami, Fla., and Lieutenant James B. Erben May 18 at the home of Mrs. Florence Bubb, 1303 Spencer street with Rev. E. Holloway, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating in the presence of a few intimate friends.

The bride, given in marriage by Major DeWitt Clark, wore a powder blue ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of orchids. The bridegroom was attended by Lieutenant George Embick.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held with Mrs. B. Erben and Mrs. Emilie Simons of Birmingham, Ala., mother and aunt of the bridegroom, assisting in extending courtesies.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Erben are now at home to their friends at 2306 Myrtle street.

Vienna

J. T. Manry of Plain Dealing, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. K. E. Ball. His son, Ardis Manry, arrived with him for a week-end stay but left for Atlanta, Ga., Monday. He is employed on the Atlanta Journal.

Vienna children receiving high school diplomas at Ruston Friday were: Elmer Lolly, Meryl Jackson, Madden Lee Nelson, Bennie Liner, Hulene Fincher and Mary Simmons. Mary Simmons is the ninth and last child of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Simmons to receive high school diplomas at Ruston High.

Mrs. J. B. Watts, Jr., is visiting Mrs. J. B. Watts, Sr., and will be joined by her husband on a furlough from his camp in Utah before proceeding to their home in Tallulah.

Mrs. B. B. Larance and Mrs. J. H. Liner attended the sixth grade play at Tech training school Friday. Frances Jeanne Liner and Zelma Louise Larance were participants in the play.

Certificates have been awarded to the following seventh grade pupils: James Aubrey White, Marie Hedgepeth, Maggie Otwell, Bennie Fincher, Jimmie Harold Causey and Roy Wiltcher. Bennie Fincher's record showed a perfect attendance for three years.

Closing of the Vienna school was marked by a picnic on Colvin creek. The three teachers, Mrs. Edith Walters, principal, and Miss Nora Colvin and Miss Willie Colvin and the entire school attended.

L. F. Martin, Gibsland, spent the week-end with her daughter, Mrs. Edith Walters.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Frazier were guests at the Vienna school luncheon on Tuesday.

CROWD SEEN FOR MASS COMMUNION

Grace Church Service And Breakfast On Sunday Morning

Prospects at edition time for the corporate communion at the 8:30 a. m. this Sunday service in Grace Episcopal church, to which all officers, cadets and enlisted men of Selman field are invited, appeared very good.

Only one important change in plans was announced. This was to the effect that automobiles calling at Selman field to drive military personnel to the church would leave from the main gate of the post, rather than from the north chapel, as had previously been announced. They will leave at 8 a. m.

The church is at North Fourth street and Glenmar avenue in Monroe.

The 40-minute communion service, to be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Edward F. Hayward, rector of Grace church, will be followed by breakfast in the parish house. There will be no charge of any kind for military personnel taking part in the observance.

All officers, cadets and enlisted men who desire to attend the service and breakfast have been asked to notify the public relations office, message center number 42, telephone extension 420, in post headquarters building, by 3 p. m. Friday. An advance estimate of the number planning to be present is desired to be used as an indication in preparing the breakfacts.

The usual Sunday afternoon open house at Grace church has been cancelled for this Sunday.

It is contemplated that a mass communion for service men will be held the fourth Sunday of every month at Grace church.

TRIO OF SELMAN MEN ARE ENTERED IN OCS

Selman Field sent three more representatives to OCS last week, two of them going to Artillery Anti-Aircraft and one to Infantry schools according to orders from Post Headquarters.

Corporal John W. Litvis, of the 43nd Navigation Training Group, and Cpl. Paul J. Mock, 75th Navigation Training Group, entered the AAA OCS at Camp Davis, N. C., while Pfc. William P. Sims, 329th Base Hq. and Air Base Squadron, will seek his commission at Fort Benning, Ga.'s, Infantry OCS.

SELMAN FIELD JOB BUREAU PLACES 59

Mrs. C. P. Wright Reports 53 Still On Rolls; Many Skills Registered

The Selman field Placement bureau has found jobs for 59 servicemen's wives since its founding on Feb. 20, according to a statement by Mrs. Clifton D. Wright, who is in charge.

Mrs. Wright announced also that 53 persons now on the bureau's register have not yet been placed.

Women now registered and those whose registrations will be taken by the bureau include teachers, saleswomen, bookkeepers, secretaries, cashiers, business machine operators, laboratory technicians, dental assistants and clerks. Several women who are on civil service status are now registered, it was added, and skills of all kinds for general office work are now available.

The principal office of the bureau is in the Ouachita parish Red Cross chapter headquarters, 200 South Grand street, telephone 1357. This office was made available through the courtesy of E. C. Gibson, Red Cross chapter chairman, and Mrs. Mamie Holstein, executive secretary.

Office hours are from 9:30 to 12 a. m. and 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays. The office would be open every day in the week if enough officers' wives could be found to take over the bureau's desk.

Ladies at present doing volunteer work at the bureau are Mrs. Wright, Mrs. James Beattie, Jr.; Mrs. Darwin S. Fenner; Mrs. William J. Ward; Mrs. Leroy C. Perkins; Mrs. Howard A. Moody; Mrs. Raymond A. Unangst; Mrs. Harry Hawkins and Mrs. Robert J. Loughrey.

LOCAL SCOUTS AID IN U. S. POSTERS

The Boy Scouts of Ouachita Valley council, serving the 15 parishes of northeast Louisiana, have recently joined with scouts all over the nation in helping to distribute vital information prepared by the government. These boys are known as dispatch bearers.

To be a dispatch bearer the boy must be properly registered with the local council and the national office. He is then issued a card, similar to the ones carried by scouts in World war I, which gives him full authority as a dispatch bearer.

The present job requested by the Office of War Information is the delivery of war posters. As evidenced in store windows and public buildings, the local boys are doing a fine job of distributing the decorative posters in Monroe.

BANKING IS ORDERED FOR BULK GAS USERS

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—Rationing banking, already in effect for many large handlers of rationed commodities, will be extended to large bulk users of gasoline, including railroads, bus companies and owners of large farms.

Beginning June 1, the Office of Price administration announced today, users who receive more than 960 gallons of gasoline a month by bulk delivery will be issued gasoline deposit certificates by local rationing boards, instead of coupons. With these certificates the consumer will open a "banking account" in any commercial bank, and write checks to cover his purchases.

The plan is designed to eliminate the handling of large numbers of ration coupons.

OUR MEN AND WOMEN IN SERVICE

RADIOMAN HOOPER

MIAMI, Fla.—Joseph D. Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Hooper of Winnsboro, is now enrolled in the radio school at the navy submarine chaser training center here.

Hooper is receiving specialized training here as part of the United Nations intensive campaign against Hitler's most effective and dangerous offensive weapon—the U-boat.

Previous to enlisting in the navy in August, 1942, Hooper, now a radioman third class, studied at the Louisiana State Normal college and the Bish Mathis institute.

PVT. ROY W. SHERRELL

Private Roy W. Sherrell has recently been home from Panama on a furlough and has been the guest of relatives and friends, both in Monroe and in Borger, Tex. He will now be in school at Fort Knox, Ky.

TWO GRADUATE

FORT KNOX, Ky.—Another class of skilled tank mechanics, trained to keep the big General Shermans, General Grants, and their little brothers, the light tanks, roaring into combat, had been graduated today from the armored force school tank department.

Graduates, announced from the offices of Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the armored force, included:

Corporal Raymond Ray, son of Mrs. Ann Ray, Route 2, Marion, La. and Corporal Steve R. Gilmore, son of Mrs. Maybelle Gilmore, Route 1, Box 106, Wisner, La.

PRIVATE RAY W. CLAWSON, JR.

Private Ray W. Clawson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Clawson, Winnsboro, La., has arrived at the Oklahoma A. and M. colelge for a course of army air forces instruction which will require for completion five months time, prior to appointment as aviation cadet in the A. A. F.

During the next few months he will take numerous academic courses as well as elementary flying training as member of the 90th college training detachment.

When he completes the course he will be classified as a pilot, navigator or bombadier and go on to schools of the flying training command for instruction in these specialties.

TWO CADETS

ATHENS, Ga.—Two naval aviation cadets from the Monroe, La., area have completed the course at the United States navy pre-flight school here and been ordered to the naval air station at Olathe, Kan., for primary flight training.

Cadets at the pre-flight school undergo three months physical conditioning and ground school work in military and academic subjects. At their primary training station they will continue ground school instruction and the physical fitness program and begin intensive flight training.

They are: George Dudley Pipes, Jr., Edgewater Garden; and, James Everett Hewett, Fairbanks.

FIREMAN ARNOLD

CHICAGO, Ill.—Now qualified to work on the engine room force of one of the navy's new warships, John Hiriam Arnold, Jr., 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hiriam Arnold, Rural Route No. 2, Newellton, La., was graduated from the naval training school for diesel operators at navy pier here last week with the rating of fireman, second class. He awaits assignment to duty with the fleet or at a shore station.

He has completed an intensive course in the operation and maintenance of internal combustion engines, including a knowledge of pressures and air systems, and electrical apparatus.

He earned selection to the school upon making high scores in a series of aptitude tests taken during recruit training. One of a class of 243 men graduated last week, he will be eligible for promotion to a petty officer rating upon gaining experience on active duty and passing a qualifying examination.

CADET MITCHINER

PECOS, Texas—Aviation Cadet George R. Mitchiner, son of Mrs. Marguerite Mitchiner of Eudora, Ark., has completed his basic flying training at Pecos army air field, Pecos, Texas, it was announced today. He will proceed to advanced tactical training with the A. A. F. before entering combat duty.

SEAMAN HARRISON

MIAMI, Fla.—Everett P. Harrison, brother of Mrs. H. O. Jones, 107 Pear street, Monroe, who joined the navy last April, is now enrolled in the seamanship school at the submarine chaser training center here.

Harrison served with the Atlantic fleet before reporting here, and is now receiving specialized training as part of the navy's intensified campaign against Hitler's most effective and dangerous offensive weapon—the U-boat. The one and only training establishment of its kind on the east coast, it has but one motto—"Sink that Sub."

Harrison now a seaman, first class, graduated from the Ruston High school.

Following the completion of his training here he can expect to see action with a sub chasing unit, combatting the submarine menace to American shipping.

DOYLE GRIGSBY

SHEPPARD FIELD, Tex.—Doyle E. Grigsby son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Grigsby, of 521 Bancroft street, West Monroe, Louisiana, has graduated from an intensive course in airplane mechanics and now is prepared to blast the Axis as one of America's "commandos in coveralls" Sheppard Field, near Wichita Falls, Texas, is one of the many schools of the army air forces technical training command which trains the specialist technicians to maintain our mighty air armada. He is now qualified to play a vital role in the army air forces ground-crew teams that "Keep 'Em Flying."

Before entering the school, he was trained at one of the basic training centers of the army air forces technical training command and learned to fight the Axis with other things besides the tools of his trade.

2 NEW CAPTAINS, 2 FIRST LIEUTENANTS

Two promotions to captaincies and two others to first lieutenancies were disclosed this week at Selman field.

The two new captains are:

Lawrence D. Connolly, of Tilton, N. H., now a flight commander in the Navigation school, is a 1940 graduate of Marietta college, Ohio. He won his navigator's wings at the Pan American Navigation school, Coral Gables, Miami, Fla.

William F. Curry, of Coulterville, Ill., an instructor in the Navigation school. Captain Curry was graduated from Southern Illinois Normal university, and won his wings at the Pan American Navigation school, Coral Gables.

The new first lieutenants are:

John P. Conroy, of Portland, Me., a squadron commander of cadets in the Pre-flight school (Bombardier-Navigator) at the field. Lieutenant Conroy was graduated in 1923 from Fordham university, where he played varsity basketball and football.

Chalmers B. Greene, of Opelika, Ala., a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1930 and of the Officers' Training school at Miami Beach, Fla., in 1942.

NEVILLE P.-T. A. HAS INDUCTION

Incoming Officers Are Installed; Mrs. Montgomery New President

Incoming officers for the Neville P.-T. A. were inducted at the final meeting of the school year, in the Neville High school Thursday afternoon. The new officers are: Mrs. Aylmer Montgomery, president; Mrs. Charles Guerriero, Jr., vice-president; Mrs. Thomas Inskeep, secretary; and Mrs. F. L. Smith, treasurer. The installing officer was Mrs. C. C. Lindley, Fifth district director.

Mrs. C. K. Crandall, retiring president, gave a report on the units achievements during the year, and also announced that all "goals" set forth by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers were reached.

Mrs. Julius Irving and Mrs. F. L. Smith gave reports on the state convention held in Monroe last month—the theme—"Protecting Families in Time of War."

Mrs. Thomas Inskeep, recreational chairman, discussed the plans for a recreation center to be opened at Neville some time in the near future.

Mrs. Crandall expressed her appreciation and thanks to Mr. Paul Neal, principal of Neville, the Neville faculty and her co-workers, for their cooperation and assistance during the past two years.

Miss May Coker proposed a standing vote of thanks for past services of the president and officers.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Aylmer Montgomery presented Mrs. C. K. Crandall with the national P.-T. A. pin for her outstanding work as president of Neville.

MISSING WIFE RETURNED HOME

Mrs. John Ott, 15, young wife of John Ott of Dry Prong, La., was located Thursday at the Union Bus terminal and returned home with her husband.

She had left her home in Dry Prong May 10 to come to Monroe on a visit and had last been seen in a West Monroe eating place May 17. The husband, worried over her disappearance, called upon the aid of the local police Thursday in his search for his wife.

AMPLIFIER ADDED AT LOCAL CHURCH

In order to accommodate the large congregations that have been attending the First Methodist church it has been found necessary to place some additional seating facilities at the disposal of the public.

Also a highly effective amplifier system has been installed so that no matter in what part of the church one may sit it is possible to hear every word of the service.

LOCAL V. F. W. MEN WILL GO TO MEET

Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, have named the following delegates to attend the department convention to be held in New Orleans May 22 and 23: S. L. McConnell, Lieutenant T. O. Brown and C. A. Hunt.

The program, like most of those for other conventions at this time, will be streamlined and it is not expected that there will be the large attendance that usually marks this annual event.

BLACKSHEEP NOVIKOFF ENDS 61-DAY HOLDOUT

PRODIGAL ON WAY BACK TO CUB FOLD

Terms Of Settlement Not Revealed; Chicago Sorely Needs Russian's Bat

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP)—Baseball's blacksheep, jaunty Lou Novikoff, carries the brand of a 61-day holdout back to the Cubs' fold.

How Chicago fans will accept him remains a gamble shared equally by the team and Novikoff. Will there be boos or cheers when he steps to the plate with that supreme confidence and waggles his bat as if it were a toothpick?

The only thing fairly certain is that fans will flock to see him play—at first, anyway.

He has been bounced from pillar to post during his prolonged absenteeism, drawing more publicity in Chicago than any other player since Dizzy Dean.

After leading the Texas and Pacific Coast leagues and the American association in hitting during successive seasons, the mad Russian broke in with the Cubs with one of the most tremendous buildups ever given a rookie. He flunked out during his short stay with the club in 1941 and was returned to Milwaukee.

Last year he strained considerably to hit .300, one hot streak bringing him up to that level.

The Cubs tried to trade him without success; General Manager James J. Gallagher and Team Manager Jim Wilson have concurred that he "doesn't have the makings of a major leaguer;" critics have picked him apart for awkwardness in the field, while others have declared it would be a blow to the morale of the team to have him back.

But perhaps he has become the most marked man in baseball today because of his own colorful admission—that if the Cubs had had the benefit of his hitting they wouldn't now be floundering in the National league cellar.

At Los Angeles beaming happily and professing himself ready to play, Novikoff hopped a Santa Fe train today for Chicago.

Novikoff will reach Chicago Sunday.

It may have been that double header they blew to the Phillies yesterday, or perhaps the Cubs looked at the standing and discovered they had won only seven of 26 games,—but something changed their position on the Novikoff problem.

Lou had been ignored for two months by General Manager Gallagher because he spurned an offer of $6,500 and asked for $10,000.

In those two months Novikoff has been playing semi-pro ball, and so have the Cubs. Lou has been earning almost as much at his warplant job as Gallagher offered. Any mention of Novikoff brought the rejoinder that the Slav outfielder wasn't needed; that he lost about as many games by his weird fielding as he won with his big bludgeon.

Gallagher said no National league club would do business with the Cubs on a Novikoff trade because the Chicago team wanted a right handed hitting outfielder. Novikoff, who bats right-handed, took another look at the Chicago batting averages. He noted that none of the outfielders was hitting .300; that only infielders Stan Hack and Ed Stanky were up that high.

While Novikoff was holding out he got his suspension notice—for failure to report 10 days after the season started. Somebody told him he wasn't allowed to play semi-pro ball while under suspension, so he gave it up and coached his team from the bench.

Maybe the Cubs don't need the colorful Lou. Admittedly, he isn't a Tris speaker. But he occasionally gets hold of a ball and drives it on a line to distant parts. If somebody doesn't start doing that soon the Cubs may clinch last place in mid-season.

ENDS HOLDOUT

Maybe the twin loss to the Phillies Thursday had something to do with the Cubs' change of policy on the holdout of Lou Novikoff who is on his way back to the fold of the Chicago Nationals after 61 days absence. Lou declares, in the best old Dizzy Dean style, that the Cubs wouldn't be in the cellar today if they had had his hitting. Settlement terms were not revealed.

BOB MONTGOMERY BEATS BEAU JACK

Philadelphia Negro Finally Wins Lightweight Crown By Decision

By Sid Feder

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—After three years of knocking on the throne-room door, Bob Montgomery finally won the world lightweight championship tonight by roaring down the stretch to outpoint the highly-favored Beau Jack in 15 bruising, bristling rounds before a near-capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden. Montgomery scaled 134; Jack 135.

After letting the bouncing Beau work off all his steam through the first five rounds, Montgomery came along to punch both of the one-time Georgia shoe-shine boys eyes almost shut, nalf floor him and then wing away in one of the fiercest brawls seen in the Garden ring in years.

At the finish, the Associated Press gave the rugged Philadelphian seven rounds, voted six for Beau and called two even as Jack was dethroned in his first defense of the crown the New York State Athletic commission handed him last December after the temporary "abdication" of Sammy Angott.

In winning, Bob "was blessed" with title recognition in New York and New Jersey. The National Boxing association has declared the championship vacant.

5 GOLFERS GAIN QUARTER-FINALS

Jones, Wilds, Beasley, Rhodes, Shafto Move Up In McGuire Club Tourney

The defending champion and four of his challengers have gained the quarter-finals of the McGuire Park Club championship golf tournament, Pro Jim McKenzie announced last night, and the other three quarter-finalists will be determined in matches today or tomorrow.

Bill Jones, defending Club champion, gained the quarter-finals this week with a second round victory over M. C. McDonald, 3 and 2.

Others advancing with Jones were C. E. "Hole-In-One" Wilds, Bunn Beasley, Vance Rhodes and Wesley "Bobby" Shafto.

Wilds eliminated Jack Rogers, 1 up; Beasley stopped Ernest Marchman, 4 and 3; Rhodes beat Frank Johnson, 5 and 4; and Shafto defeated Gene Demaree, 4 and 3.

Second round matches in the upper bracket are complete and semi-final engagements next week in this section will send Jones against Wilds and Beasley against Rhodes.

Shafto's win over Demaree was the only second-round match played up to yesterday afternoon in the lower bracket. Lower bracket second round matches that must be played by tomorrow afternoon are E. S. "Shep" Girault vs. R. G. Dillion, H. A. McDonald vs. R. B. Henry, and H. K. Touchstone vs. H. H. Reardon.

The lower bracket semi-finals next week will send Shafto against the winner of the Girault-Dillon match, and the winner of the McDonald-Henry contest will face the victor of the Touchstone-Reardon engagement.

In first round matches of the consolation flight this week E. E. Eaves won by default from Albert Marx, Ben Downing, Sr., defeated Malcolm Biedenharn, 3 and 2; R. D. Kellogg won by default from John Jordan; and S. V. "Al" Allison won by default from J. L. Keenan. First round consolation matches to be played not later than tomorrow are C. W. Wallace vs. Harold Woods and Johnny Sherrouse vs. S. L. Digby.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Sports Editor)

NEW YORK.—Johnny Humphries' 10-inning six-hitter against the Yankees in Chicago handed Tiny Bonham his first defeat. Then Nick Etten's scratch in the second inning deprived Lee Ross of a no-hit, no-run game against the American league champions. This is further tribute to the coaching of Herold Ruel, generally considered the finest handler of pitchers.

Cleveland swapped Humphries and all his natural ability. Connie Mack passed Buck Ross along.

Save for that turned in by Ted Lyons and Johnny Rigney, both now in the armed forces, the White Sox pitching in more recent years has been done by castoffs. And, to their credit and that of Muddy Ruel, more good pitching has been wasted by the Comiskeys for want of something else than by any other club that comes to mind.

Thornton Lee, the sizable southpaw, got nowhere in particular in Indian costume, but Professor Ruel made a 22-game winner of him in 1941. The Athletics quit on Edgar Smith and bespectacled Bill Dietrich. Smith has pitched well, but has had so many bad breaks that a tough luck legend has been built around the blond left-hander. Dietrich is quite a puzzle on given days. Ruel transformed Clint Brown, a veteran, into the most accomplished relief worker in the business.

Jimmy Dykes leaves pitching entirely to Ruel. Johnny Rigney tells me the secret of the old backstop's success is that he never lets a pitching mistake go uncorrected. He is everlastingly picking a pitcher to pieces or patting him on the back. Complacency is not countenanced. White Sox pitchers are in the game when they are in the dugout or bullpen.

Baseball men tell you pitching is from 75 to 90 per cent of baseball, but it can't prevail alone, as has been repeatedly demonstrated.

Muddy Ruel rehabilitates pitchers, but giving ball players a batting swing is something else again.

Waving a handful of technicalities, Commissioner Landis notifies the Phillies that Gordon Phelps can't play until 60 days after completion of the deal with the Pirates.

Frank Crosetti of the Yankees was kept out for 30 days for the heinous offense of pushing an umpire in the World series.

Wonder if Judge Landis has heard of the manpower shortage?

Permitting Babe Phelps to help the Phillies, who are off to a splendid start and drawing beyond all expectations under new ownership and management, would be constructive.

And Judge Landis, it seems, simply has to be investigating, trying and sentencing.

Out for two months with a fractured knee and 1-A in the draft, Vern Stephens is apparently lost to the Browns until the war is won, but not until he further demonstrated what one youngster can do for a club. . . . At times it is impossible to tell, with the naked eye, whether Schnozzola Lombardi of the Giants is walking or running . . . Hans Lobert seems out of place coaching at first base for the Cincinnatis . . . The bowlegged old third baseman was with the Phillies so long he became part of the scenery.

Four million tons of the sun's mass is converted into radiant energy every second.

HUMPHRIES BEATS SENATORS WITH 3-HIT PERFORMANCE, 1-0

Tigers Shade Red Sox In 13 Innings, 2-1; Athletics Edge Browns, 2-1

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox defeated the Washington Senators 1 to 0 tonight as Pitcher Johnny Humphries rationed three hits to capture his third victory of the season.

The first night game of the season at Comisky park drew a crowd of 8,567.

The Sox made their only run off Dutch Leonard in the fifth inning when Humphries himself doubled to right field and scored when Rookie Thurman Tucker singled.

The Senators' three hits were accounted for by Ellis Clary, George Case and Gerald Priddy. Clary and Case singled after two were out in the third. Clary got as far as third base in the transaction—the only Senator to roam that far during the game.

Priddy got his hit with two out in the seventh. In six of the nine innings, Humphries retired the side in order.

In winning their sixth game in their last eight starts, the Sox rapped Leonard for nine blows in seven innings before he retired for a pinch hitter. Milt Haefner finished on the mound.

TIGERS BEAT BOSOX

DETROIT, May 21.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers, playing their seventh extra inning game of the season pushed home a run in the 13th frame today to defeat the Boston Red Sox 2 to 1, in the opener of a four-game series.

With two out in the 13th, Tony Lupien muffed Joe Hoover's popfly for a two-base error and Roger Cramer lined a single to right field to score Hoover, Rangy Tex Hughson, who scattered seven hits, suffered his second 1943 defeat, and Lefty Hal Newhouser, who yielded nine hits and fanned 10, gained his first victory.

Two walks, a single and a passed ball produced the lone Boston run in the first. Dick Wakefield and Ned Harris put together doubles for Detroit's run in the fourth.

COUNT FAVORED TO WIN WITHERS

Five 3-Year-Olds Vie With Derby King For Second Money For $3,000

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—Five other three-year-olds will accompany Count Fleet to the post tomorrow in the Withers mile at Belmont park—and that's probably the only time during the afternoon they'll be close enough to him to see what he looks like.

For, in the Kentucky Derby the Count just about ran the legs off two of the colts in tomorrow's field of six, and the other three gallopers have shown nothing to indicate that they'll be around for anything more than the air when the brown lightning bolt hits the Belmont stretch.

You get the idea, therefore, that all Mrs. John D. Hertz's Derby and Preakness winner has to do is show up to pick up the Withers' $13,800 pay-check and boost his bank roll to $216,060.

There's nothing among the others who figures even to muss his hair as he takes the third step toward a "quadruple" sweep only one other horse in history has accomplished. This is the triple crown of Derby, Preakness and Belmont, plus the Withers.

About the only consolation for the others tomorrow is that there's $3,000 second money for the one who can come closest to the Count, who probably will go to the post at the not-so-juicy odds of 1 to 6 or so. Chief candidates for the runner-up cash appear to be W. E. Boeing's Slide Rule and Townsend Martin's Bankrupt, who rand third and fifth, respectively in the Derby, and William Woodward's Tip Toe, a so-so three-year-old who has hit peak condition under Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons.

William Dupont's Fairy Manhurst, a son of Man O'War who never has won a race, and Two Timely, a daughter of Discovery from the Texas barn of R. J. Kleberg, probably will fight it out to see who comes home last.

SOUTHERN

TRAVS 1; LOOKOUTS 0

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 21.—(AP)—A single, a sacrifice and a double in the ninth inning broke up a hurlers' duel between Bucky Jacobs of the Lookouts and Ed Greer of Little Rock tonight and gave the Travelers a 1-0 victory.

The loss was the first this season for Jacobs. He has won 6. McGhee, who got him for a single in the final frame, went to second on a sacrifice and came home on Cantrell's double. The game, played in one hour and 20 minutes, was the fastest here this year.

By virtue of the victory, the Travelers edged the Lookouts out of third place, taking over the position for themselves.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 21.—(AP)—A seven-run rally in the sixth inning enabled the Birmingham Barons to down the Knoxville Smokies by a score of 11 to 8 tonight and even the series with the visitors, 1 and 1.

Baron Pitcher Johnny Orphal walked 13 men and hit one in less than eight innings, and Zach Schuessler, who relieved him, pitched good relief ball.

Bob Usher, Baron left-fielder, got four hits and drove in four runs and Nick Polly, third-sacker, also drove in four runs. Bob Finley, equalled their record by driving in four for the Smokies.

PHILS SHOW INTEREST IN GOMEZ PROVIDED HE PROVES HIS ARM GOOD

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—(AP)—The Phillies announced today that William D. Cox, club president, has made a "proposition" to Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, the former star southpaw pitcher of the New York Yankees, who was given his unconditional release by the Boston Braves this week.

It was explained that the offer was conditional upon Gomez coming to Philadelphia and convincing Manager Bucky Harris that there is nothing wrong with his arm.

"I saw him only once or twice last year and he didn't impress me as having anything worth while," Harris said.

8 Bowling Alleys To Be Located Behind Main P-X

The post exchange within ten days will begin construction of an eight-alley bowling establishment which it will operate on a non-profit basis, according to an announcement by the post exchange office.

The alleys will be completed by Aug. 1, according to present plans.

Plans call for a building 120 feet long by 72 feet wide to house the alleys. The resulting building will thus be one of the largest in area on the field.

The alleys will be located between the main post exchange and enlisted men's mess hall No. 2. On this block will be located also the new gymnasium.

A soda founiain and an equipment store will be operated in the bowling alley building.

The alleys will be obtained from the Brunswick company.

BRITISH WOO PARLEY PRESS

Delegation At Food Conference Anxious To Please Newsmen

By James Marlow And George Zielke

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 21.—(AP)—The British delegation to the international food conference—where press relations have been subnormal—is piping its viewpoint to the outside world at a pace far outdistancing that of any other nation represented here.

The British are doing this by direct contact with the press, the usual method for getting ideas published. Here, however, the usual has become almost the unusual.

Here, where the atmosphere is sometimes frigid because of United States government restrictions on activities of newsmen covering the conference, the British delegation is accessible and cooperative.

Prevented by armed soldiers from entering the hotel where representatives of this government and 44 foreign nations are quartered, newsmen have their press room in a building called the casino on the grounds' outskirts.

Newsmen thus must ask delegates by telephone to step down to the casino to be interviewed.

Even before the delegates arrived here, the British set up a direct pipeline to the press.

The chairman of the British delegation called a press conference in Washington so he and his colleagues could meet the newsmen, express some views, answer some questions.

One of the main links between Law's delegation and the press is Charles H. Campbell, a British subject but who, until he joined his government's information service in Washington some months ago, was for about 20 years a reporter and city editor of the New Orleans Item.

Twenty minutes after the British delegation arrived here Monday with other foreign delegates for the conference opening Tuesday, Campbell was in the press room.

He made it known that he wished to meet as many of the American newspapermen as possible so they could contact him at any time for information about his delegation or, if they wished, to arrange interviews with the British.

On Tuesday monring Law and his British colleagues parked on the porch of the hotel's swimming pool—which is nearer the press room than the hotel—and held an informal press conference. This, Campbell explained, was at the request of newsmen.

That same afternoon at a reception for delegates and newspapermen in the hotel—one of the few times reporters will be allowed to enter there—the British delegation mingled freely with the newsmen, sometimes obligingly moving into corners for interviews.

The easy-availability of the British group is in strong contrast with the attitude of some other delegations. For instance:

At the reception, representatives of one of the great nations politely declined to answer questions, with the explanation that all information had to come from their chairman.

But their chairman, they explained, was not at the reception, was busy, would probably remain very busy, and that it was impossible to say when he would have time to talk.

The result was the same when delegates of another large nation were asked by phone to send a spokesman to the casino. In this case it was explained:

"Dr. So and So is the only one who can talk. He is not available now. He planned on having a press conference in a few days. Until that time we feel sure he will not wish to speak to anyone."

Various limitations have been placed on how remarks by United States delegates can be used. The British have not established any rules.

SEVERANCE TELLS OF FLIGHT SCHOOL

The West Monroe Kiwanis club met for the usual Thursday noon luncheon in the First Methodist church in that city, with the president, Paul Reising, presiding.

The chief speaker was F. L. Severance, of the Northeast Junior college flight school. He stated that graduates of this school have attained the best record with the least number of failures after leaving school. This speaks for the whole fourth area he said and it comprises New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

A guest of the luncheon was Charles Knost, of the New Orleans Kiwanis club.

GEORGIA PEACH CROP SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS

MACON, Ga., May 21.—(AP)—Georgia's 1943 peach crop is estimated at 16 per cent of a normal yield by W. C. Bewley, general manager of the Georgia Peach Growers exchange.

Forecasts, he said in a statement yesterday, set the total number of carloads shipped from the state at 2,195 this season, compared with a normal movement of 12,500 carloads. Georgia's peach crop was cut by frosts and freezes in March and April.

Bewley said the demand will greatly exceed the supply everywhere as the peach crop for the entire country is only from five per cent to 25 per cent of a normal yield.

The federal marketing agreement, in effect again this season, will prohibit the shipment of immature peaches and also govern the quality to some extent. Under these conditions, Bewley said, good prices are in prospect.

The OPA has been considering ceiling prices for fresh peaches along with other fresh fruits and vegetables, but no action has been announced so far. Peach ceilings are being opposed by growers of Georgia and seven other southeastern states.

MARKETS

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—Stocks: Irregular; late bids stem declines. Bonds: Mixed; some rails resistant. Cotton: Uneven; liquidation and covering.

CHICAGO—Closed unchanged to 3-4 higher; May delivery strong. Corn: Unchanged at ceilings. Hogs: Steady to 10 cents lower; top $14.60 sparingly. Cattle: All classes firm, active; receipts very light.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—Assorted rails and specialties took a late turn on the recovery side of today's stock market while many leaders lingered in losing territory.

Prices slipped at the start. A little buying came in near the close and final trends were no worse than mildly irregular. Volume expanded a trifle at the last and transfers for the full proceedings were around 1,000,000 shares. Variations mostly were in minor fractions although isolated gains and losses of 3 or so were observed.

Bonds were uneven. At Chicago wheat was up 1-2 to 3-4 of a cent a bushel, apparently reflecting fears of crop damage by mid-west floods. Cotton, toward the end, was off 5 to 45 cents a bale.

CONTRACT FEES TO BE CURBED

Proposed Bill Would Halt 'Fly-By-Night' Contract Agents

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—Overwhelming Senate approval of legislation to prevent "fly-by-night" war contract agents from collecting excessive fees was predicted today by Chairman Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, of the naval affairs committee.

Under a bill sponsored jointly by Walsh and Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the House naval committee, and already passed by the House, manufacturers' representatives and commission agents would find federal agencies empowered to renegotiate any fees in excess of $25,000 a year.

The measure, which Walsh said he would call up for Senate action next week, would accomplish this by defining the agents' contracts or arrangements with their principals as "subcontracts" — amending existing statutes which provide for renegotiation of any war contract involving $100,000 or more. Excess profits are recovered by the government.

Walsh, who said the bill specifically exempted bona fide officers, partners or full-time employes who represent their companies in soliciting government business, cited the hypothetical case of an agent who might represent three companies obtaining contracts totaling $5,000,000. The agent might have arrangements calling for a 5 per cent commission, allowing him a total of $250,000.

Called before a renegotiation board, he could prove legitimate office, travel and other expenses for the year of $20,000, leaving a profit, before taxes, of $230,000.

The board could decide, Walsh continued, that the reasonable net value of his services was not more than $50,000.

"He would therefore be called upon to refund $180,000 to the government, and pay taxes upon the $50,000 which he was permitted to retain as profit," the senator added.

Walsh said the bill was not designed to eliminate representation by manufacturers' agents, many of whom perform services essential to small manufacturers, but to prevent their aggregate compensation "soaring to shocking and unconscionable amounts."

Gold Eagle Stands Watch At Post Theater Door

A roughed up, fighting, grizzly faced, unmanicured plaster of paris eagle takes its place next week on the wall of the ante room at the entrance of the post theater.

A sprawling beast, it stretches across nine feet four inches, three feet four wide, a gold symbol to the offensive spirit of the Army Air Forces. Its base is the navigator and bombardier symbol, with the script "Prepare for Combat" waving majestically along the bottom of the sculpture.

It all started two months ago when the special service office issued a call for murals and Cpl. Gurdon Woods, 28-year-old sculptor, working as an instructor in Pre-flight radio, answered. Woods whose bronze portraits adorn the lobby of the ultra exclusive Hampshire House, Central Park South, New York City, was obviously just the man for the job.

Working during his own time Woods who made his home in several states before settling down in a studio in Warrentown, Va., spent all of his free hours building and designing the eagle on a huge board.

It was no different than working on one of his animal sculptures, he said. Woods before coming into the service gained considerable reputation with his animal bronzes many of which appear in galleries in New York and Philadelphia.

He worked in his coveralls, just as he did at home when he'd wear old work clothes.

He said he selected the eagle as his subject because the eagle represents the epitome of belligerency and offensive spirit. The air corps, according to Woods, is one branch of the service which stands for the offensive.

Woods calls himself an eclectic artist, having studied mostly from the masters, during his stay in Paris and in Rome. His formal education includes secondary education in Boston where he later attended the Copley Art school, and in New York at the Art Students League.

SELMAN TO GET GYM BUILDING

Basketball And Handball Courts, Boxing Ring Are Planned

Selman field is to have a gymnasium, as a result of repeated efforts by Col. Earl L. Naiden, the commanding officer.

According to the office of the area engineer, the building is scheduled to be started on or about June 7, and will be completed about mid-August. There is some ground for belief that the gym will be ready for use ahead of schedule.

A site south of the South Chapel has been selected for the building, thus putting it in the same block with the post exchange, the post theater and enlisted men's mess No. 2.

The structure will contain a basketball court, boxing ring and handball court, as well as shower and locker room facilities. It will be 160 feet long by 58 feet wide.

Colonel Naiden's part in securing the gymnasium consisted in his repeated and eventually successful efforts to obtain authorization and funds to build the gym for his command.

Many historic remains of Roman and pre-Roman times can still be found in Tunisia.

CITY COURT

A woman listed by the police as Mrs. Toni K. Gulledge, 105 Jack McEnery street, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant, failed to appear in city court yesterday for trial and Judge W. M. Harper ordered her $100 cash bond forfeited.

Bill Burns, 500 1-2 DeSiard, accused of fighting and being drunk and disorderly, forfeited a $20 cash bond, and Mrs. Bill Burns, charged with fighting, forfeited a $12.50 bond. Ivy Otwell, Sterlington, was fined $17.50 on charges of being drunk and disorderly and refusing to pay a taxi fare. J. S. Colvin, Vienna, was sentenced to 60 days in jail for vagrancy, and one traffic law violator was fined $7.50.

N. J. C. HOLDING ITS CLASS TODAY

Many Awards Made At Local Institution On Friday Morning

Recognition for achievements earned in various fields of endeavor the past college year was given in the annual class day exercises held in the auditorium of Northeast Junior college Friday morning. The program was planned by the committee on student action, Miss Ada Bess Hart, chairman, and with Miss Margaret Payne, presiding at the meeting.

The annual Kiwanis club award for the best short story submitted written by a local college student was awarded by E. N. Thompson, president of the Monroe Kiwanis club, to Barbara Schuster whose story was entitled "Equal." The award was paid in war stamps.

The college student council selected the most outstanding man student of the year and this award proved a tie, being given to Prentiss Cox and Pascal Norris. A handsome bill fold was given by Bernard Zuccaro, vice-president of the student council.

Time magazine award went to John Currie of the faculty; and to Sophomore Robert Easterling and to Freshmen Cecil Dopson and David Martin, who tied for the honor. The award was made by W. R. Hammond of the social science department.

The E. H. S. club award went to Miss Sybil Ogden, the club member who was declared to have done the most for the club. This award was also made by W. R. Hammond.

To the student who had done the best work in dramatics went a prize by the Delta Psi Omega, national junior college dramatic society, to Gail McDonald and Bernard Zuccaro, who tied. The award was given by Marjorie Martin.

National discussion contest winners were Prentiss Cox and Pascal Norris, who tied for the honor. The presentation was by Sybil Ogden, president of the E. H. S. club.

Two new awards were given this year. One was by Miss Mary Clay, college librarian ,for the best feature story and was won by Billy King Smith. Honorable mention was given Kate Kugler and Pascal Norris. The other new award was by Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl for the best editorial and was given to Prentiss Cox, with honorable mention given Barbara Schuster and Albert Cloud. The presentation was made by Ross Banister, business manager of the Pow Wow in the first year that it was published by the college.

Purple Jackets gave to the most outstanding sophomore girl the annual award which was presented to Nan Drew and Mary E. Breard by a tie vote. The presentation was by Miss Olive Lusk, college registrar.

W. R. Hammond presented the Lillian Herron Williamson prize which also was a tie and which went to Gloria Hester and Elizabeth McKell. The prize is in the sum of $45 in each case.

Dean C. C. Colvert presented the athletic scholarship to Lloyd Barron.

The L. L. Price award went to Everett Zeagler for the most outstanding work in agriculture.

Phi Theta Kappa prize for highest scholarship was also a tie, the winners being Sybil Ogden and Pascal Norris. The presentation was by Mary E. Breard.

The R. O. T. C. awards were given by the commandant, Colonel Frederick L. Pond, who gave a certificate to Company C for the best group in parade; to Company D, led by Captain Bedford Smith, to the best in athletics; Company C was winner in drill attendance; for the best cadet most proficient in the manual of arms, the winner was Johnny Ethridge; to the cadet the best in the school of soldiery, to Foster Wilson; to the cadet the best shot, to Walter Rhodes; to the best squad, award was made to the one led by Walter Zamojc.

In football, the R. and A. prize to the most valuable player, Tommie Sands was given this recognition; the all opponent award given by the Paramount theater went to Hugh Taylor; the best trainer award by G. A. Foster of Baton Rouge went to two brothers, Prentice and Woodward Boyles; the best blocking award went to John Woods.

The program included musical selections by the college band led by Ralph Reschar and two solos. One was by Dorothy Williams, pianist and by Louise Rinehart, soloist.

BULGARIA THOUGHT LIKELY TO REVOLT

MONTREAL, May 21.—(AP)—The possibility that the Bulgarian people might overthrow their present government and cooperate with the allies should they attempt to invade Europe through the Balkans was foreseen today by Kosta Todorov, a former leader of the Bulgarian peasant party now living here in exile.

Todorov, who has been condemned to death in absentia by the courts of Bulgaria for his anti-axis activities, declared in an interview that "if properly approached by the United Nations, the Bulgarian people as well as the Bulgarian army would help a rapid penetration of Europe by the allied forces, with most of the other Balkan countries aiding in a large measure."

"My people are all anti-axis," Todorov added, "and the army counts a great proportion of men and even officers who have secretly favored an allied victory for a long time.

"King Boris fooled the Bulgarian people in 1941. He led them to believe that in adopting a non-belligerent attitude favorable to the axis, Bulgaria was siding with Russia, which helped her to regain her freedom from the Turks.

"When the Bulgarians realized they had been duped by their sovereign the only thing left was to wait for the signal to rise in protest. Cleverly engineered allied political strategy would give that signal."
